

Harding Opposed To Nationalizing U. S. Coal Mines

Says Plan Would Be
"Only Another Step Towards National Paralysis" of the Country.

DISCUSSES WORK DONE
BY COAL COMMISSION

Asserts in His Cheyenne Speech "We Shall Have a Publicity Which Will Make Greed Impossible."

Cheyenne, Wyo., June 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—In a discussion here today of the nation's coal problem in which he mentioned the industry, the consuming public and the government's interest in all phases of coal operations, President Harding recorded himself as being opposed to "nationalizing the mines," and declared that the United States coal commission would bring the country "a new understanding" of the problem and point out a solution "in behalf of a vital public interest."

The chief executive spoke from the observation platform of the car in which he came here from Denver to his first Wyoming audience. He also mentioned the problems of the livestock producers of the state, the wool interests and called attention to relief measures which he said congress and the war finance corporation had given after war's inflation and later deflation.

No Place For Loafers.
The biggest need of the world today, the president said, was work, adding that the world has no use for a loafer, big or little, "whether commanding capital or directing labor."

In developing his principal theme, the coal problem, Mr. Harding referred to the strike of last year, asserting his opinion that many line operators were as much responsible for that situation as the men who struck.

Referring to the coal situation at another point in his remarks, Mr. Harding said:

"A few years ago, one of your Wyoming statesmen made the astounding statement that your state alone contained enough coal to supply the entire land with fuel for four centuries to come. Whether the statement was extravagant or not, it was at least an intimation of your mineral resources of which the nation at large had never dreamed."

"How incomprehensible, indeed, are your limitless possibilities and you are but one of many states of seemingly incomparable material riches. Let us hope that the genius of statesmen and the common sense of business men may be combined to solve the problems of transportation and distribution so that your wealth may be made an asset to the nation as well as to the state."

Anxiety in New England.

"It may seem a far cry to talk about the coal problem in Wyoming but it is one of the pressing problems of the country. In New England today there is anxiety about next winter."

MEN OBEY ORDERS AND GIVE POLICE CHIEF BAD SHOCK

Chicago, June 25.—Concern of Chief of Police Mike Collins over the conduct of his men during the heat wave revealed a startling scandal in the department Monday.

"Take off your coats, men," ordered the captain of the traffic squad when the crew reported for duty. "That's the chief's orders."

Off came the coats and the captain gasped.

"Put 'em back on," he ordered. "None of my men are going out to the streets half-naked."

The traffic cops, who had been unaware of the new ruling, promised to wear both shirts and underwear Tuesday.

Orchids In Your Kitchen

There's an orchid which grows in southeastern Mexico known as vanilla—a beautiful thing which bears aromatic pods holding a number of beans. It is the extract of these beans that housewives use in flavoring.

As this flavoring fluid is extracted from the vanilla bean so the housewife can extract countless benefits from the Want-ads.

SCORE OF DEATHS CAUSED BY STORM AND BY TORNADO

Six Persons Meet End in North Dakota—Farm Buildings Over a Wide Area Destroyed.

St. Paul, Minn., June 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Nearly a score of deaths and great property damage resulted from Sunday's storms in the northwest, reports tonight revealed.

Six persons perished when a tornado swept western Bowman and eastern Adams counties in North Dakota Sunday night. Twelve persons were seriously hurt, one probably fatally, and five slightly injured in this storm.

Three persons met death in the vicinity of St. Paul, by drowning or accident. One man was drowned near Huron, S. D., and at Goodwin, S. D., a farm hand was killed during a windstorm.

Several other deaths were reported from other sections in Minnesota and Wisconsin from drowning, electrocutions and accidents, all attributed to the storm.

Heavy rainstorms early today added to the damage. More than two inches of rain fell here today and at Redwood Falls 5.62 inches fell. At Little Falls 2.25 was recorded.

A large number of houses, barns and other farm buildings were demolished, and many horses and other farm animals were killed in the North Dakota storm.

Ball Player Killed.

Monmouth, Ill., June 25.—Roy Mears, second baseman for the Stronghurst baseball team, was killed by a bolt of lightning, and three others were knocked unconscious in the fifth inning of the Stronghurst-McComb game at Stronghurst, Ill.

The lightning pierced the second baseman's body. Oscar Croston, the McComb runner off second base; Umpire Clarence Hartman and Pitcher Oscar Dillon, of Stronghurst, were the injured.

ROYAL MAIL LINE LINER IS SINKING

Carquet Is Reported
Breaking Up on the Bermuda Reefs—25 First-Class Passengers Aboard

Hamilton, Bermuda, June 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Royal Mail Line steamship Carquet, from Halifax to the West Indies, went on the reefs 12 miles north of Bermuda at daylight today. She is believed to be breaking up. All available ocean tugs have gone to take off the passengers. A high sea is running but no loss of life is expected.

Boiled in 1894.

The Carquet, a vessel of 4,800 tons gross, belonging to the Royal Mail Steam Packet company, was built in 1894 at Belfast.

B. Harrett, of Bermuda, a director of the Royal Mail, is one of the passengers on this steamer.

Passengers aboard the Royal Mail steamer Carquet, which went aground on a reef 12 miles north of Bermuda, have been taken off the ship by tugs, it was announced at the company's office tonight. Mail was also removed and no casualties were reported.

25 First-Class Passengers.
Halifax, N. S., June 25.—The Royal Mail Packet Carquet, reported breaking up on the Bermuda reefs, had 25 first-class passengers aboard and 55 Chinese traveling third class when she left here Friday morning. She also carried heavy mails and a full general cargo.

ETHEL BARRYMORE, FAMOUS ACTRESS, SUES FOR DIVORCE

Providence, R. I., June 25.—Ethel Barrymore Colt has entered action in the superior court here for a divorce from Russell G. Colt, son of the late Colonel Samuel P. Colt, millionaire head of the United States rubber company. Hearing is set for the week of July 2. No contest is said to be expected.

Under the will of the late Colonel Colt, Mrs. Ethel Barrymore Colt received a joint share with her husband in the estate owned by Colonel Colt at Mamaroneck, N. Y., now occupied by herself and her three children and $25,000 outright. Each of the children received $50,000. Mr. Colt received $100,000 outright and other assets.

ALLIES WAITING ON FRANCE TO ACT ON REPARATIONS

May Demand Cessation of Passive Resistance in Ruhr Before Holding Discussions With Britain

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Paris, June 25.—The last week has passed in an effort to determine whether the French and British are going to act together in taking the next step in regard to reparations, or alternatively, whether France is going to take one course, with Britain, supported by Italy and possibly by Belgium, turning to some other course.

The almost universal assumption has been that the precise issue between France and Britain during the past week is whether France is going to insist that there be cessation of passive resistance on the part of Germany before France consents even to discuss with Britain the question of whether or not there shall be a joint reply to the last German note. This assumption is far short of the facts.

Position of France.

It is true that France, immediately following the German note, notified Britain of her intention to insist upon cessation of passive resistance as a precedent condition, and that Britain in reply asked France to define exactly what she means by cessation of passive resistance—which question France is at this moment engaged in answering. But this is only a fraction of what is now being settled, or attempted to be settled, between France and Britain.

France has also made many other conditions, covering practically all details of the reparations settlement. Among these conditions and proposals laid down by France, which are now in process of negotiation with Britain, are these:

That the Rhineland railways shall be turned over to an international company which shall devote the revenues to reparations.

That certain coal mines in the Ruhr shall be handled in the same way.

That customs revenues in the occupied territory shall be administered by France and Belgium until the reparations are completely paid.

That all German customs shall be paid in gold, and that a fixed percentage of them shall be applied to reparations.

That France shall have her percentage of reparations out of the A and B bonds.

That the proceeds from the export of certain limited classes of commodities shall be applied to reparations.

Constitution Tour in Movies At Metropolitan

Cameraman Buchanan
"Shoots" Fair Maidens on the Route to Tybee.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

We couldn't, all of us, get away to take that trip conducted last week by The Constitution, from Atlanta to Savannah and thence over the wonderful new motor highway to Tybee. But, this week, we can all of us do it next best thing.

We can go to the Metropolitan theater and see the moving picture of the journey, with its long motorcade of cars and its frolicking bunch of holiday makers, as taken by Jimmie Buchanan, cameraman par excellence. Jimmie, by the way, is also an Atlanta product and is better known to his innumerable intimates as "Buck."

They are real pictures. You see the long line of cars as they left Atlanta. You see them speeding down the smooth roads on their way to Augusta and Savannah. You see a big auto party from the Savannah Motor club meeting them on the borders of Chatham county and you finally see them on the new road, among the palms, that leads you, drenched, right to Tybee Island, that alluring playground of Georgia and the south.

Then, hush, you see the bathers in the surf. There are lots of Atlantans to be picked out by their friends in the crowds on the beach and in the ocean and, even if you haven't any personal friends down there, there is a fascinating supply of bathing beauties to gaze upon.

And, for a last impression, don't miss the closing scenes of the picture, when Cameraman Buchanan took close-ups of the contestants in a bathing beauty contest.

By the way, that reminds. There are some splendid specimens of Georgia pulchritude in the scenes showing the stop at Sylvania, where refreshments were served from the "last still in Screen."

FORD IS KEEPING U. S. POLITICIANS ON ANXIOUS SEAT

Secretary Says Manufacturer Sees No Objections to Friends' Activities in His Behalf.

Detroit, Mich., June 25.—The most authentic intimation that Henry Ford might accept a presidential nomination thus far officially forthcoming was furnished Monday by E. G. Liebold, Ford's secretary.

Liebold, commenting on a letter written by him to a volunteer Ford-for-president in Savannah, Ga., was guarded in his statements, but declared the multi-millionaire automobile manufacturer would not reject or accept the offer of a presidential nomination from any responsible party or persons without serious consideration.

Has Not Had Cause.

"But Mr. Ford has not yet had cause to consider an offer, or anything definite in that direction," Liebold said. "As far as I know he has never committed himself on the probability or possibility of his being a presidential candidate."

Liebold's statement thus heads a list of other reported remarks by interested persons on the Ford boom. These include:

Ford's quoted statement that he would not be a candidate, was reported from Springfield, Mass. Later Ford was quoted as repudiating this.

Mrs. Ford's assertion that she would not live in the white house. Promise of several persons more or less friendly with Ford that he will be a candidate.

Assurances of countless volunteer Ford workers that they are meeting with a tremendous popular response.

Interest of People.

No doubt has been left as to the people's interest in Ford as presidential timber, either by the straw vote being conducted by Collier's Weekly or by Liebold's statement to the United News Monday that more than 200 letters a day are being received questioning the possibility of Ford's candidacy. Most of these letters come from the south.

Turks and Allies Plan to Renounce War Indemnities

Agreement by Nations Is Reached at Conference Held in Lausanne.

Lausanne, June 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Turkey and the allies agreed today to mutual renunciation of war indemnities. The Turks, however, bound themselves not to ask the reparations commission for the six million Turkish gold pounds belonging to Turkey, which were seized by the allies from the Deutsche bank in Berlin.

They agreed not to ask the British for reimbursement of the five million Turkish gold pounds deposited in England in 1914 for the construction of two warships.

It was also decided today that the council superintending payment of the Ottoman debt shall be relieved of all responsibility for the cost of returning the Turkish paper money issued during the war.

CHICAGO LOVERS OF GRAND OPERA PAY LARGE LOSS

Chicago, June 25.—Ten weeks of civic opera in Chicago last season were produced at a net loss of $351,000, according to the first annual report of the Chicago Civic Opera company, made public today. Despite this loss the season was declared the most successful ever held in Chicago. The loss will be made up by about 200 guarantors.

Past Chamber Executives Ask City to House Elks

As a result of invitations extended the grand lodge of the Benevolent Order of Elks to hold its 59th reunion and convention in Atlanta July 9-14, a large crowd of people will gather in this city. This invitation was extended in a spirit of hospitality for which Atlanta has become famous and was given only after prominent citizens, city officials and various civic organizations had been consulted and had enthusiastically consented to aid in the entertainment of the immense gathering.

Now that the time for the great convention, which will mean the gathering of between 50,000 and 75,000 people, is near, the 1923 convention board finds that an emergency has arisen over an alarming shortage of rooms of the better class in which to house the guests during the five days of the session.

Therefore, in view of the obligation resting upon the people of Atlanta by reason of the fact that the Atlanta Elks' representatives were emphatically urged to issue the invitation to the grand lodge by citizens, officials of the city and various civic bodies; and in consideration of the fact that the reputation of Atlanta for old-fashioned southern hospitality is being jeopardized by a possible failure to properly prepare for the reception of our invited guests, we, the past presidents of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, respectfully and urgently appeal to every loyal and patriotic citizen of the city to throw open the doors of his home and take in those who will visit us during the meeting.

His splendid reputation for being the most delightful resort city in the southeast, are both in the balance, and this appeal is made in order that the name of our city may not suffer.

SOLONS ACTIVE AS LEGISLATURE OPENING NEARS

J. Herman Milner, of Dodge County, Accepts Place of Rules Committee Vice-Chairman.

RUSSELL TO BE NAMED AS SPEAKER PRO TEM.

Senators Munday and Carswell, Candidates for President of the Senate,
Open Headquarters.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Whatever lingering doubts might still be left in public minds as to whether the 1923 session of the legislature, which convenes next Wednesday, would run along lines of previous normalcy were quickly dissipated Monday by a visit to the lobby of the Kimball house.

The "little capitol," as that old and famous hostelry is called during the legislative sessions, was a swarming hive of members, candidates for various offices, and their political hangers-on all day Monday and far into the night. Bees of all degrees of political significance buzzed loudly about the floor—at least one important buzzer brought home the honey, and things generally looked and sounded entirely natural.

An announcement of big interest was given out. J. Herman Milner, of Dodge county, who has been an active candidate for the place of speaker pro tem of the house, was appointed vice chairman of the rules committee for the lower house.

Unopposed For Speakership.

By this appointment, made by W. Cecil Neill, who is unopposed for the speakership, Mr. Milner automatically retires from the race for the speakership pro tem.

Mr. Milner, as vice chairman of the important rules committee, will occupy an exceedingly important place during the coming session. He will virtually head the committee, as the claimant for ex-officio to the speaker. The committee has full charge of the operations of the house during the last seven days of the session and fixes the daily calendar during the preceding days. Speaker Neill has also stated that this year he will endeavor to have the committee serve as a steering committee for the entire session, thus to expedite the business of the house.

It developed Monday night that R. Russell will be named as speaker pro tem.

Doctor Claims Power to Make Men Tell Truth

New Anaesthetic Prevents Him From Telling Lie, Convention Is Told.

San Francisco, June 25.—Where courts of law, clever attorneys, penitentiaries and prisons have failed to check the ever-growing increase in crime, medical science has stepped in to make the world unsafe for crooks to live in.

This was the assertion of Dr. R. E. House, Ferris, Texas, which afforded a thrill to the opening session of the American Medical association convention here Monday.

By a new anaesthetic ministered to the suspected criminal he loses the power to tell a lie, Dr. House says. The man tells the truth in spite of himself.

The "truth serum," called scopolamin, has no after effects and serves its purpose equally well in freeing a man wrongfully convicted of a crime and in convicting a man who pleads innocence when guilty. The truth simply will out, according to Dr. House.

An absolute revolution in criminal procedure was predicted by Dr. House, who said that criminals would be robbed of their ancient defense—perjury on the witness stand—if given scopolamin. Dr. House has tested his serum on a number of Mennin, Texas, men who were instructed to answer untruthfully questions put by them. They were given the serum and then told the truth.

HUSBAND PRESENT, JEALOUS WOMAN STABS HER RIVAL

Kansas City, June 25.—A tryst in one of Kansas City's most beautiful scenic spots Monday may result fatally for Mrs. Julia Feldheger, who was stabbed a dozen times by Mrs. Sadie Darling after being found in company with Mrs. Darling's husband.

A male spectator of the stabbing finally pulled Mrs. Darling from her victim and took a small pocketknife from her.

At police headquarters, her dress and face spattered with blood, Mrs. Darling admitted the stabbing and characterized Mrs. Feldheger as the "other woman" who had been attempting to break up her home for two years.

Mrs. Feldheger was in a critical condition Monday night following operations.

Balanced Farming Meeting Arouses Statewide Interest

EVERY COMMUNIST STEP IS VEILED BY SMOKE SCREEN

Learn That Only Through Deception Can Disciples
Be Brought to Destructive Policies.

BY FRED R. MARVIN.

(Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

As has been pointed out, that which we call communism or bolshevism today is not new. It has made its appearance under many names. It is based on destructive policies. Its first prominent advocate, Adam Weishaupt, frankly said that civilization and Christianity were failures.

Therefore, men could be happy only when they returned to the primitive. To do this, all that went with civilization and Christianity must be destroyed. His plan was to abolish government, property rights, rights of inheritance, religion and the family relations. Over a period of nearly 150 years these ideas have been percolating.

Communism in the United States, directed as it is, absolutely and with an iron hand, from Soviet Russia, has gained its present strength not because the people of this country wish to destroy, but because the people of this country wish to correct, and honestly correct, any existing evil. Much of the harm done in the United States has come from work through organizations that are not communist in their purpose, not organized by communists, and which, because of their objective, have as followers many sincere and loyal people. But these followers are being deceived. As was pointed out in the second article, real or fancied grievances are intensified and made to appear the results of the capitalist government.

March Evidence at Michigan Trials.
In the trials of William Z. Foster and Charles E. Ruthenberg for violating the criminal syndicalism law of Michigan, the jury disagreeing in the case of the former and a verdict of guilty resulting in the case of the latter, a vast amount of evidence was secured exposing the method of operating to secure the unwitting aid of a large group of people in this country. The evidence was complete in showing the system was well arranged, ably directed and, at all times, sufficiently financed. Communism has gained great strength in the United States in the past few years, but not under that name. Indeed the great majority of those who are following the theory of Weishaupt grow indignant when told they are aiding and abetting communism.

Why the Weather?

DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS,
Secretary American Meteorological Society, Discusses:

Truthful Weather Doggery.

Of the hundreds of weather proverbs, some of which date back to at least 4000 B. C., for they were inscribed on the clay tablets of Babylonian, some are based on accepted scientific fact. A group of these was brought together in verse, supposedly by Dr. Jenner, discoverer of vaccination. Dependable couplets follow:

Last night the sun went pale to bed.
The moon in halos hid her head.
The heding shepherd heaves a sigh,
For see! a rainbow spans the sky;
Hark! how the chairs and tables crack!
Old Betty's joints are on the rack;
Her corns with shooting pains torment her.
And to her bed untimely send her;
Loud crack the ducks, the peacocks cry.
The distant hills are looking nigh;
How restless are the snorting swine!
The busy flies disturb the kine.
Low over the grass the swallow swoops;
The cricket, too, how sharp he sings!
In fiery red the sun doth rise.
Then wades through clouds to mount the skies.
'Twill surely rain—I see with sorrow.
Our jant must be put off tomorrow.

PROMINENT GEORGIANS
TO ADDRESS MEETING

William G. Sutlive to Preside—Governor Walker,
Commissioner Brown,
Dr. Soule to Speak.

ASHBURN INDORSES
FARMING CONFERENCE.

Ashburn, Ga., June 25.—(Special.)—At a meeting of the Ashburn Board of Trade here this afternoon the following resolution was unanimously passed: "The Ashburn Board of Trade expresses hearty appreciation of the movement started by The Atlanta Constitution to arouse the business men of the state to keep up the work of the Georgia association. There is a unanimous feeling here that there is now a supreme need to keep up the work which was being done by George T. Betts through the Georgia association."

The calling of a state-wide conference to be held in Atlanta next Thursday evening, June 28, to agree upon plans to carry forward the work for a system of balanced agriculture, so earnestly advocated by the late George T. Betts, president of the Georgia association, has met with such gripping favor all over Georgia that it looks now that this conference will be one of the largest, most earnest and most resourceful ever held in the state.

All day Monday letters, telegrams and telephone messages poured in upon The Constitution from the mountains to the sea, many of them from editors of daily papers in the state who are intensely interested in this great economic problem of placing Georgia upon an agricultural prosperity program.

Conference Will Preside.
The conference will be held in the assembly room of the chamber of commerce, and Hon. W. G. Sutlive, of Savannah, president of the Georgia Press association, and a member of the general assembly, will preside.

Addresses will be made by Governor Clifford Walker, Commissioner J. J. Brown, Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture; editors of newspapers in various sections of the state, and prominent business men of Savannah, Macon, Augusta, Atlanta and other cities.

Elect Betts' Successor.
The conference will follow the meeting of the directors of the Georgia association, which will be held during the day, and at which time a successor to the late president will be named. It will be in the interest, therefore, of showing unselfishly that the people of Georgia are behind any constructive movement for the bettering of the economic conditions of the state, and for the material advancement of the farming interests, around which all interests revolve.

This conference is to be an open forum, and there are no issued invitations to it. Every person who has the farming interests of Georgia at heart and especially who believes that a system of balanced agriculture, instead of a single crop serfdom, is the course of wisdom, is urged to be present and to take an interest in the proceedings. There will be a number of women from various sections of the state to participate in the proceedings.

It is impossible, from lack of space, to publish all of the letters and telegrams that poured in upon The Constitution Monday regarding this great proposal. Following are a few of the outstanding commendations of the plan, illustrating the wide interest in this proposed conference:

J. J. Brown Approves.

Atlanta, Ga., June 25. Editor Constitution: I have just read your article in this morning's Constitution relative to the work of our lamented fellow-citizen, George T. Betts, of Ashburn, Ga., and your suggestion for a meeting on next Thursday evening for the purpose of discussing ways and means for continuing the valuable work that Mr. Betts was doing as president of the Georgia association.

I take this opportunity to commend you for the foresight and good judgment in using your influence in the continuation of the great work so enthusiastically done by Mr. Betts. It was my pleasure to have a long conference early in the year with Mr. Betts and Mr. Abbott, the secretary of the Georgia association, in which we thoroughly agreed as to the details of the work being done by Mr. Betts and his association, and to which I pledged the hearty support and cooperation of the department of agriculture with all of its branches. And it was my pleasure, at the recent hog and poultry sale at Camilla, Ga., in Mitchell county, on June 5, 1923, to commend to the large gathering of farmers and business men attending that sale the good work being done by Mr. Betts and the Georgia association.

Conditions Are "Unusual."

In this connection permit me to say, further, that I do not want to appear as pessimistic in the least, but I do feel that the time has come when those of us who have responsibilities placed upon us in connection with Georgia's agriculture should speak plainly and frankly as to the condition of the seasons and the ravages of the boll weevil, as well as the status of the colored labor from the farms going north, and the white labor leaving the farms and going to the towns and cities, has greatly embarrassed and endangered the final outcome of Georgia's production this year. And unless just such work as was being fostered by Mr. Betts, as well as the good work being done by the War Finance corporation in extending credit to the farmers, be continued, I fear that we have not yet seen the worst that is to befall not only our agricultural interests but the interests of our whole state, on account of the inevitable consequence of our failure to produce anything like a normal average crop this year. If Georgia could bring in this state the money that is spent by this state for poultry, pork, bacon, food and feed products annually, that with itself would amount to more than the total amount received for our entire cotton crop for any one year—even before the advent of the boll weevil. Our state possesses more diversity of soil, and has more natural advantages for the growing and producing of all agricultural products, both animal and vegetable, than possibly any state in the union; and when once the entire business interests of our state realize that our progress and wealth cannot continue without a successful agriculture, the state will be for all concerned. And before we can have a profitable agriculture in Georgia and in the nation, it will be necessary to avail ourselves of the opportunity to produce every diversified product that the world needs, and organize co-operative marketing associations, as well as facilities for handling these products, such as the creamery at Ashburn, and others too numerous to mention, and by so doing stabilize and market these products on a basis that will give cost plus is the only thing that will give cost plus, is the only thing that will stop the flood of labor that is now leaving the farms and crowding our towns and cities to take advantage of a wage far greater than it is possible to maintain on the farm under present conditions.

Nothing for Profit.

You no doubt noticed the news items carried in the press of yesterday, giving an account of the president of the United States visiting the wheat fields of the northwest, and with his own hands calculating the cost of production of the products of our fellow-farmers in that section, as well as the price for which their grain was being sold, which showed that practically nothing was being made as a clear profit by those people who grow a large per cent of the food that mankind must have.

"carry on" the work so splendidly begun by George Betts.

Julian Harris to Help.

Columbus, Ga., June 25. Editor Constitution: The purpose of arranging a plan to carry forward the magnificent work of George Betts, which you are working on, is along constructive lines and no newspaper in Georgia is better equipped than The Constitution for the leadership, not only in constructive matters, but against destructive movements. You may count upon the Enquirer Sun to co-operate with you in every way. We have been continually working to get the diversification scheme going in this section. You covered the ground when you showed the shackles of single crop slavery must be struck from the farms of Georgia.

JULIAN HARRIS, Editor Columbus Enquirer-Sun.

Herring Indorses Plan.

Tifton, Ga., June 25. Editor Constitution: I heartily indorse the Constitution's call for a state-wide conference to decide upon definite plans to carry forward the work to which George Betts devoted the best years of his life, and to which he probably sacrificed his life. Could he know what is being done here to perpetuate his memory. To carry out this work means a richer and more prosperous Georgia, and the abandonment of the slavery of the all-cotton system. Carry out the Betts plan and Georgia soil will work for Georgia people instead of Georgia farmers, their wives, and children, wearing out their lives working Georgia soil.

J. L. HERRING, Editor Tifton Gazette.

John H. Jones Wires. Editor Constitution: I hasten to congratulate The Constitution upon its continued powerful response to the most vital needs of Georgia, among which none is so imperative at this critical time as the Betts plan for systematic intensive co-ordination of our state's vast agricultural resources. Your prompt action in this interest, let me hope, will meet with vigorous support throughout Georgia for the expansion of the great plan which Mr. Betts has left as a precious heritage. The failure of Georgia to put the Betts plan into full operation would invite serious setbacks in the way of future industrial growth. Georgia must make the Betts plan her declaration of independence.

JOHN H. JONES, Editor LaGrange Reporter.

Timely, Says Padgett. Atlanta, Ga., June 25. Atlanta Constitution: It is with deepest interest that I notice in this morning's paper your calling for a meeting for Thursday evening of a number of business men. This is very thoughtful and timely, following the election of a successor for Mr. Betts. The magnitude of the task warrants the best efforts of the state's greatest men, in both wealth and brain; and it will require co-operative effort on the part of those who love our state to get behind the new officers to be elected at the Thursday conference of the Georgia association.

Whoever is elected, you can depend on the hearty cooperation of both this company and the writer, George Betts is dead, but his work shall live on through the united efforts of sacrificial citizens of Georgia.

BEN R. PADGETT, Manager, Rogers Realty & Trust Co.

Unselfish, Page Declares. Columbus, Ga., June 25. Editor Constitution: Georgians can not afford to allow that splendid, far-reaching movement, inaugurated by the late George Betts for a more economic agricultural system, to be lost. The state's future is involved in the success of this undertaking through the Georgia association and every loyal Georgian ought to rally to the support of the noblest thing in the plan appears practical, entirely feasible, constructive and unselfish and the state-wide meeting proposed for this week should be largely attended. Georgia's agricultural interests ought to be placed on a sounder and more economic basis. Any

Is No Calamity Wall. This is no calamity wall from Mr. Hollomon. He is actuated by no sensational motive. He has known for some months Georgia's urgent need for a reversal of agricultural methods. His eyes have just been opened, however, by a two hundred mile automobile trip. He has seen some of the deserted farms, mute and pathetic evidence of the exodus of 30,000 white people to the cities and the migration of more than 60,000 negro laborers.

The inauguration of the new government is eventful; the gathering this week of our general assembly is noteworthy; the approaching convocation of the Elks is of national interest; but transcending all these questions, situations and gatherings is this movement to establish the agricultural system of the state on the proper lines. I am of the opinion that every newspaper in Atlanta, and every newspaper in the state of Georgia, for that matter, if there should be any sectional, factional or business differences, will brush them unselfishly aside and join in this great undertaking. It is the zero hour. Every element in industrial, commercial and professional life should unite now in this proposed movement for solving the economic conditions in rural Georgia. Business activities in the cities have possibly blinded some of us to the distress of the man on the farm.

Allen Commends Program. Atlanta, Ga., June 25. Editor Constitution: I wish to add my hearty commendation to your suggestion of a meeting of Georgia business men to be held on next Thursday, following the meeting to be held during the day in which a successor to the lamented George Betts is to be named. The editorial and Mr. Hollomon's special article in The Constitution this morning was one of the most forceful presentations of the truthful conditions in Georgia I have ever read, and it should be read by every thinking man in Georgia.

George Betts' death is a distinctive loss to this state he gave his life, dying in harness in a cause, the realization of which will mean more to Georgia than anything that has occurred in the history of our state. He was one of Georgia's finest and greatest assets, and at the time of his death was just beginning to weave around the Georgia association, largely through his own personality and sincerity, a strong working organization for the betterment of Georgia. His place will be hard to fill. But it is the hope and purpose of the directors at a meeting to be held next Thursday to select a set of officers who can go on with the work started by George Betts.

Congratulates Constitution. I congratulate The Constitution for the generous and proffered aid in leading a continuation of a fight for better agriculture and better marketing in Georgia. As I understand it, it is your purpose to call together a good number of leading citizens for Thursday's evening meeting following the election of officers for the association on Thursday, at which time a successor to Mr. Betts is to be chosen. Your suggestion of the call for a meeting for Thursday is most timely and appropriate and should arouse the interest of all farseeing business men of this city and state.

You can count upon me and our organization to do all that is possible to not only make the meeting on Thursday evening a success, but help move to that end is of genuine merit.

ROGER M. PAGE, Editor The Columbus Ledger.

Merits Support, Says Neal.

Savannah, Ga., June 25. Editor Constitution: George Betts helped to prove that Georgia can be a prosperous agricultural state in spite of the boll weevil by getting down to the fundamentals of agriculture, hooking up soil improvement along with crop production, and using, instead of merely talking about, the possibilities of the state's climate. The Georgia association made a fine start in the right direction; with proper financing it ought to be able to be worth many millions of dollars to Georgia year after year. Any effort to carry on the work George Betts did deserves the support of everybody who loves Georgia.

ROY NEAL, Editor Savannah Morning News.

Practical, Says Rowell.

Rome, Ga., June 25. Editor Constitution: The plans of the late George Betts for developing a more economic agricultural system in Georgia were practical and commendable and any conference for the carrying forward of that work would be worth while. I think a conference for the purpose of working out such plans will be most beneficial. I will be there Thursday, if possible to attend the conference.

W. S. ROWELL, Editor Rome Tribune-Herald.

Is Essential, Says Rowe.

Athens, Ga., June 25. Editor Constitution: I agree with you that the holding of a state-wide conference to formulate a plan for the encouragement of our agriculture is very essential at this time. I believe that the business men of Georgia must take a more active interest in this undertaking than has been considered necessary in the past. The record of the college farm here at Athens shows that we can diversify profitably. In 16 years I find that its gross sales have totaled something over $200,000. Of this amount, $122,000 was derived from dairy products, about $30,000 from the sales of live stock and only $25,000 from cotton. This shows that we can transform our agriculture and place it on a satisfactory financial basis with the right kind of leadership.

Every one interested in the welfare of Georgia should be willing under the circumstances to support and foster the movement you are inaugurating. I am one of those who believe that this meeting should give special attention to the solution of the problem of the farmer finding a successful and profitable market for his diversified products and particularly those of animal origin.

HUGH J. ROWE, Athens Banner-Herald.

Phinizy Assures Support.

Editor Constitution: The Constitution in all its long years of public service can do no greater part for the good of the state, for the help of the people, than to arouse interest in an economic and sound agricultural system for Georgia. Under present conditions under state leadership, every county in Georgia must be aroused, organized, and a proper county plan adopted if agriculture and our farms are to be saved. We will have representation at Thursday evening's meeting and you can count on our hearty support and co-operation.

BOWDRE PHINIZY, Publisher Augusta Herald.

Athens Secretary Approves.

Athens, Ga., June 25. Editor Constitution: I heartily endorse the appeal in today's Constitution for more generous support of the Georgia association and your action in calling a state-wide meeting for Thursday, Athens and Clarke county will send a delegation.

E. W. CARROLL, Secretary Athens Chamber of Commerce.

Elks to Discuss Prize Fight Angle.

Arriving in Atlanta Monday from New York, Chairman Jud S. McClelland of the Elks' 1923 convention board, Judge L. F. McClelland, exalted ruler of the local lodge, Walter P. Andrews, of this city and Robert A. Gordon, grand trustee of the Elks' organization, gave out the information that a formal conference will be held this morning by officers of the local B. O. O. lodge with reference to the plans to prevent the boxing match between Harry Greb and Jeff Smith during the week of the grand lodge reunion here July 9-14.

Assurance, it has been stated, was given Grand Exalted Ruler J. Edgar Masters and the board of trustees of the grand lodge, that the boxing match would be prevented if possible in view of the positive decision to permit the convention of the grand lodge to be held in this city. Every possible step will be taken to stop the bout, even to asking the Georgia legislature to adopt a statute prohibiting such bouts in the commonwealth.

Statements attributed to Dr. P. L. Provano, who is a promoter of the proposed prize-fight, are to the effect that the plans for the big sporting event will go forward as though there was no opposition to it at all. Dr. Provano stated that he had invested between $30,000 and $50,000, in the event, and that he had made his preliminary plans with the consent of the local Elks lodge, and with the assent of the grand exalted ruler. He said he stood to lose the above amount of the fight is called off.

Elks of the Atlanta lodge, however, are emphatic in their statements that the prize fight shall not be held, and they announce their intentions of carrying the controversy through the courts to the general assembly of the state, if necessary, in order to prevent the bout convention week.

The controversy has resulted in a sharp division of opinion, and is the subject of general discussion between the two sides of the affair. A statement will be given out regarding the matter this morning following the meeting of the officials of the Atlanta lodge, which is to be held at the rooms of the convention board. This meeting will cover all angles of the question, and plans will be made to oppose the proposed boxing bout with every available means at the disposal of the lodge officials, it was stated.

DENIAL OF SHOOTING MADE BY MRS. BUZZI

New York, June 25.—Taking the witness stand in her own defense today, Mrs. Anna Buzzi, charged with the murder of Frederick Schneider, a wealthy contractor with whom she had lived for several years, calmly answered every question in a long cross-examination and denied any connection with the slaying.

Sheriff refuted her assertions that she never was outside her apartment on the day of the shooting.

Schneider was shot dead at the wheel of his automobile on a lonely highway in the Bronx last February. A farmer heard the fatal shot, saw a woman walk away from the car and up the highway.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR NEGRO BANDITS

Detectives Monday night were making a determined search for the two unnamed negro bandits who at midday Monday, in plain view of scores of people and in the outer business district, held-up and robbed J. E. Robinson, cashier of the Red Rock company, of more than $1,500, which he was intending to deposit in a downtown bank.

The negroes answer the description of those who have recently terrorized gasoline filling station proprietors by their daring robberies. In one instance they followed the manager of a filling station from Boulevard and Ponca de Leon avenue to Howell Mill road, almost to the end of the car line, where one of the bandits stepped from the running board of their car onto that of their victim, and relieved him of more than $100.

A full description of the negro bandits, together with that of the machine they are driving, has been telegraphed by Police Chief James L. Weaver to all the principal cities of Tennessee, South Carolina, Alabama and Florida, besides all nearby Georgia cities and towns.

Robinson Suffers Shock.

Robinson, who is probably 50 years old, was overcome from the nervous shock of facing two guns in the hands of negro bandits. He remained at the offices of the Red Rock company's plant, at Jackson and Irwin streets, as long as possible, but was forced to retire to his home.

According to information furnished the police, Mr. Robinson had completed counting his money, which he placed in a black handbag to carry to the banks. As he stepped out of the Jackson street entrance to the Red Rock plant, a negro got out of a touring car, which was standing nearby with the motor running. A squad of detectives remained in the machine with his hands upon the steering wheel. Both negroes drew pistols, the one nearest Mr. Robinson snatching the handbag and starting toward the waiting car with a warning to his victim that if he made an outcry he would be shot down. The negro who remained at the steering wheel likewise threatened Mr. Robinson.

Negroes Speeded North.

The negroes speeded north in Jackson street and were lost sight of before police could be notified. A squad of detectives working under the personal supervision of Lieutenants T. O. Sturdivant and W. A. Chevening are following every possible clue.

Two employees of the American Railway Express company, who were loading freight in the Jackson street entrance of the plant, witnessed the robbery. It happened so smoothly and so quickly that neither had time to realize what was being accomplished, they stated. The expressmen were D. L. Shell and his partner, Mr. Watkins,kins.

Eighty-one per cent of the urban population of New York state live in zoned municipalities.

INSPECT ONLY PART OF FLORIDA GASOLINE

Only a small part of the oil shipped into Florida is inspected. It was closed Monday when Commissioner of Agriculture J. J. Brown made public a letter written to him on June 15, from William A. McKee, commissioner of agriculture for Florida.

Commissioner McKee was not acquainted with the requirements of the Georgia law, when, on June 12, he wrote Governor Hardwick expressing his belief that six inspectors could inspect all the oil and gasoline in Georgia, stated Mr. Brown. Producing the letter written June 15 in support of this statement, Mr. Brown referred to the fact that the Georgia law requires that every car of oil or gasoline sent to this state be inspected.

Letter to Brown.

The letter of Commissioner McKee to Commissioner Brown was as follows:

"Answering your inquiry, this is to advise that I estimate that we inspect one-tenth of the oil tank cars shipped into Florida.

"There is no more being made in this state to have local oil inspectors. If, however, each and every car of oil shipped in was inspected, the number of inspectors would be greatly increased.

"This department has favored a distillation test for gasoline for four years, and has recommended to the agricultural committee of the general assembly that the distillation test be added to the present tests, in order to better protect the people of Georgia against low grade or dangerous oil and gas," Commissioner Brown declared.

"The movement for the distillation test of gasoline is gaining new ground. This department will support any measure with that object in view that is introduced in the coming legislature.

"With the distillation test added to our present inspection system, we would have the very best oil inspection in the United States. But it would defeat the very object of the inspection laws if local inspectors were done away with and the people of Georgia exposed to the danger of burning gasoline of some other explosive fluid in their lamps, lanterns and stoves."

Commissioner Brown made public a letter from H. Harris, commissioner of agriculture of South Carolina, admitting that the system of local inspectors, as followed in Georgia, is preferable to the state inspector system followed in South Carolina.

Commissioner Harris' letter was as follows:

"Replying to your question, I will say that I know that a system of local oil inspectors, one in each town where an oil tank is located, would unquestionably give the people greater protection and render our inspection service more efficient than a system which provides only a few traveling oil inspectors covering the state. Of course, it is understood that all of the local inspectors would frequently visit the towns where tanks were located and keep a close check on all work done by the inspectors. In addition to the test made by the local inspector, it is believed that if a sample were drawn and forwarded to your laboratory to be analyzed according to a standard, it would be a much greater protection to the people. And, to it would enable the laboratory and chief inspector to maintain a closer check upon the work of the local inspector; that is, in checking the specific gravity test."

Arrest Refused, Husband Shoots Rival for Wife

Harvey Beard, negro, shot and killed Bill Thompson, negro, on Broad, near Alabama street, late Monday evening after, he said, two Atlanta policemen had refused his request that they arrest Thompson on his complaint of breaking up his home. The fatal shooting occurred when Beard met his wife with Thompson about 8:30 o'clock in front of the Wilmet hotel.

Beard was arrested immediately by Patrolman T. R. Glover and removed to the police station while the body of the dead negro was taken away in a Grady ambulance.

To the crowd that collected around him to follow them.

the scene, Beard coolly related his version of the case as he awaited the police wagon.

"I had begged Thompson to stay away from my wife and when I discovered them together again this afternoon on Decatur street I asked a policeman to arrest them. The first one I met told me that he could not leave his beat. I asked another policeman to make the arrest but by this time Thompson and my wife were out of sight and I could not get to the crowd that collected around them to follow them."

Saving Money Key To Door of Success

Russell Sage said: "The easiest way to get money is to save it."

John Wanamaker said: "The difference between the clerk who spends all his salary and the one who saves part of it is the difference—in ten years—between the owner of a business and the man out of a job."

Theodore Roosevelt said: "If you would be sure that you are beginning right, begin to save."

James J. Hill said: "If you want to be a success or not, you can easily find out. The test is simple and infallible. Are you able to save money? If not, drop out. You will lose. You may think not, but you will lose as sure as fate, for the seed of success is not in you."

It is said that the song of the bird was originally a cry of alarm.

A Blessing Born in the Agony of War

HE world is just recovering from the greatest war in history. During that war millions of men perished and billions of dollars worth of property was utterly destroyed. These are staggering losses. Were there any gains? It must be remembered that from 1914 to 1918 the world was concentrated in an effort to find weapons and methods for the destruction of human life. More efficient production of the things that gave men the power to kill was the chief aim of civilization locked in a death struggle.

Opposed to this gigantic effort to destroy, however, was a comparatively small body of men and women whose every thought and act was devoted to the preservation of human life. Surgeons, physicians and nurses were the soldiers that the science of medicine called to the colors. They went forward into battle not to kill but to save, and in the greatest clinic the world has ever known, they learned new methods of surgery and healing that will be of incalculable benefit to mankind.

By far the greatest contribution to healing which came as a result of the war was a new antiseptic which completely revolutionized surgical methods in the allied hospitals almost overnight. What this antiseptic meant to humanity is indicated by extracts from a few of the periodicals the world over that hailed its discovery as the medical achievement of a century.

From the Literary Digest

"Countless lives have been saved, amputations have been avoided, wounds have been healed in a half or even a third of the time ordinarily required by the use of the new Carrel-Dakin treatment of infected wounds. It is, therefore, gratifying to know that the inventors of this new technique are coming to this country to make it available here and to teach it to American surgeons. Dr. Alexis Carrel won fame in the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York before he entered the French Service, and his return on special furlough to set up a hospital in the grounds of and under the auspices of the Institute is especially appropriate. According to an article in La Nature (Paris), the Carrel-Dakin method has been spoken of as the greatest surgical discovery since the days of Lister. The basic idea seems to be that as practically all wounds in war became at least slightly infected, the most important thing is to destroy the infection by antiseptics rather than merely to keep out infection by antiseptic treatments."

From the New York Sun

"The great success of Drs. Carrel and Dakin, especially the advances made in the treatment of deeply-wounded legs and arms which formerly were invariably amputated, but now are saved by the new treatment, is widely known among laymen. Deep wounds meant infection that the surgeon formerly could not get at to cleanse; therefore, the leg had to come off. Dr. Carrel perfected a method of treatment whereby he inserted into the wound a solution of hypochlorite that acted as a thorough disinfectant, and yet avoided the caustic effects of the chlorine. The chemical properties of the solution simultaneously kill bacteria, and have a solvent effect upon dead tissue, thus minimizing the opportunities for progressive infection."

From the New York Times

"The distinctive feature of this Carrel-Dakin treatment, which is one of the most notable surgical developments of the war, is the use of a solution of hypochlorite under conditions which utilize the disinfecting properties of the chlorine and avoid its caustic effects. This chemical compound has the unique property of killing the bacteria and exerting a solvent effect upon dead tissue, thus reducing in the wound the opportunity for bacteria to develop."

From the Review of Reviews

"It is admitted that in the recent war infection was more malignant than ever before.  The only efficient antiseptic found was that which was employed with great success by Drs. Dakin and Carrel. The evils of war were greatly lessened, and a permanent gain for humanity achieved."

From the International Journal of Surgery

"In this war, infection has played about the most important role in surgery. There has not been a great advance in the treatment of infected wounds in the last fifty years. At the beginning of the war, about 75 per cent of the amputations were performed because of infection, and not because of the purely traumatic condition of the limb—about the same percentage as was performed in other great wars. Fortunately, Dr. Carrel and Dr. Dakin, with their associates, were successful in arriving at a definite line of treatment for such infected wounds."

for several years, and they have finally succeeded. Zonite is the result. Its discovery means that humanity is at last provided with a mighty defense against dangerous bacteria. It means that a medicine shelf in the home can contain a non-poisonous antiseptic, that by standard laboratory test is more powerful than pure carbolic acid. It means that the world will benefit hugely in peaceful years to come from a blessing wrought from the agony of war.

Uses for New Antiseptics

There are so many uses for the new antiseptic—its possibilities are so enormous—that space does not permit a full discussion of them here. From colds and sore throats, to diphtheria and pneumonia, most human ailments rise from the lodgment and propagation of germs in the throat and nasal passages. At these points in the human anatomy the bacteria of contagious diseases make their initial entrance and attack. The knowledge of this was of small value in the past, because the known antiseptics powerful enough to destroy the invader would destroy the mucous membrane as well. Zonite, at proper dilutions, may be used with impunity in the nose and throat of a child as well as an adult.

Another important fact in connection with the war-born antiseptic is its prevention of fatal accidents. It is no longer necessary to risk the horrible catastrophe which bichloride tablets, carbolic acid, etc., may bring upon a household. It will be folly to keep such deadly compounds in the family medicine chest when a more effective and non-poisonous antiseptic is obtainable.

Zonite is being supplied to druggists as rapidly as possible. It is a colorless liquid that does not stain, destroys odors and leaves no odor of its own.

Bennett's Action In Lawrenceville Bank Case Upheld

Levying and collection of assessments against stockholders of defunct banks as provided by the banking laws of Georgia was upheld in a decision of a federal court presided over by Judge N. P. Bryan and Alex C. King, of the United States circuit court of appeals, and Judge Samuel H. Sibley, of the United States court for the northern district of Georgia, in the suit brought against T. H. Bennett, superintendent of state banks, by stockholders of the defunct Lawrenceville bank.

The Lawrenceville bank failed in January, and in February Superintendent Bennett levied a 100 per cent assessment against the stockholders to pay the liabilities of the institution. The stockholders then filed suit, in which the constitutionality of article 7 of section 20 of the state banking act was attacked, which instructs the superintendent of banks to collect assessments from stockholders of defunct banks to pay liabilities.

The complainants further charged that Superintendent Bennett had levied a 20 per cent assessment, previous to the 100 per cent one. The superintendent of banks, however, stated that after the 20 per cent assessment had been levied the bank continued in operation for one year. The tribunal ruled that the claims of fraud in assessments could be presented in courts of equity for action.

Superintendent Bennett was ordered to proceed with the liquidation of the bank on the same basis he had instituted, and after all liabilities of the bank had been paid in the full, the remainder of the assets was applied to reimbursing the stockholders who had been assessed.

MATHESON GIVEN HONORARY DEGREE BY PENNSYLVANIA

Dr. Kenneth Gordon Matheson, president of the Drexel Institute in Pennsylvania, and who served as president of the Georgia School of Technology for a number of years, has received the honorary degree of doctor of science from the University of Pennsylvania. It was learned here Monday, Dr. Matheson has many friends in Atlanta and throughout the south who will be pleased to hear of his latest honor.

Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, provost of the university, conferred the degree.

OUT AGAIN—IN AGAIN

Lawyer-in-Fact Is Jailed for Contempt.

Linton J. Poe, who styles himself a "lawyer-in-fact" because he claims to have graduated from an eastern correspondence school, was sent to jail Monday for 20 days—for the second time—charged with contempt of court. Judge John D. Humphries ruled that one must be an "attorney-at-law" to practice in Georgia courts and that one who was not so qualified can not practice "even though he has received his diploma at the mail box and termed himself an 'attorney-in-fact.'" Judge Humphries administered a severe lecture to Poe, sentencing him to 20 days in jail without privilege of paying a fine.

Poe on May 21 was sentenced by Judge Humphries to serve 20 days in jail for practicing in the state's courts without a lawyer's license. His second friction with the judge was Monday when he was haled before him charged by Attorney Howard Stephens with filing a second suit in the name of W. E. Corley against D. H. Hindman. It was in this same case that Poe was sentenced the first time.

BABY BETTER OFF IN NINE COUNTRIES THAN IN AMERICA

Aurora, Ill., June 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—There are nine countries where a baby newly born has a better chance to grow to healthy childhood than in America, Secretary of Labor James J. Davis declared at the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Child care and the improvement of child life were the themes discussed at the opening session attended by more than 1,000 delegates. This number is expected to be materially increased tomorrow.

"Every year 500,000 American babies die before reaching the age of one year," Secretary Davis said. "During the last year and one-half not one baby was registered in that class from Mooseheart. If all America was like Mooseheart, we would lead all the countries in the world in protecting babies."

"Five hundred thousand American children, so-called delinquents and delinquents, are growing up almost totally neglected. From the ranks of these come more than 80 per cent of the criminals who fill our jails and penitentiaries. Of the half million men and women in our corrective institutions more than 300,000 were sent there on account of neglect in childhood."

ter's fuel supply, traceable to the experienced hardships of last winter. That severe trial to New England in particular followed the coal and railroad strikes, when winter came on with inadequate supply and insufficient transportation facilities.

"The government is not blind to the situation or deaf to appeals. It is doing everything possible so far as authorized by law to dispel apprehension. Under the authority of an act of congress, the United States coal commission, made up of able and earnest men, has been engaged in a thorough investigation of this vital problem and will report to the congress next December."

"It is going thoroughly into the labor controversy, studying living conditions and the community life in the mining region, ascertaining facts about the inadequacies which prevent prompt distribution, inquiring into engineering problems and the economic errors incident to over development, looking to the excesses in profits reflected in inordinate charges for coal, and preparing an exhaustive report on the entire industry. It will be revealing, and, we hope, remedial. We shall know the facts about a basic industry, which is the source of peril to the nation's industrial life, and more or less continuous threat to our domestic comfort, sometimes a menace to life and health."

"Make Greed Impossible." "It is too early to say whether the commission will suggest plans of permanent cure which the congress will adopt. I do know that it will bring us to a new understanding of a problem which must be solved. We shall have a publicity which will make greed impossible, and point the way to solve a question which must be answered in behalf of a vital public interest."

"Doubtless there will be a recommendation of vast storage during season of light consumption to guard against the heavy needs in winter or in suspended production."

"Probably, I should like to see recommendations for enhanced distribution, the need of which is already proven. There may be revelations as to cost of production, which will destroy price making abuses through insistent public opinion. I hope for the revelation of the economic blunder in operating mines half and quarter time, by which the higher labor costs are made necessary."

"Meanwhile, we shall be better guarded against inconvenience and hardship if the consuming public will help as best it can, without expecting the government to assume all the responsibility."

"Buy at Right Time." "If the coal consuming world would buy coal during the periods of scant consumption, it would be used against price panics and dangerous shortages when consumption is at the peak. In the hope of lowered prices, the buying is postponed and that very postponement is contributing to a decided price increase. There is need for some individual initiative and responsibility in preparing for the winter days to come. There is a mistaken notion that somehow the government may wield a magic wand, and strike with the iron hand, and produce cheap coal. It can do neither. You can no more enforce the mine workers to produce coal than you can enforce the farmer to grow wheat or corn, or wool. We saw that erroneous belief exploded a year ago."

"Many mine operators, who were as much responsible for the strike as the workmen who struck, insisted that under law they could not produce all the coal that was needed. The law enforcement was provided but no coal was produced. There can be no coal mining in free America under force of arms. But if we understand the situation fully, and offer justly, and men accustomed to produce coal will not work to meet the need, the public will produce the successors."

"The common law transcends every other interest and puts aside every obstacle. We will find the solution. I hope we shall find it without further hardships or endangered life or property."

But we shall not find it in nationalizing the mines. That would be another step to the national paralysis which a sane America will everlastingly avoid. Nor shall we solve it by maintaining a permanent strike like that of the coal production under a plan of operation which affords the mine worker only a hundred or a hundred and fifty working days a year. The normal family, cannot live that way, even though he is paid what is seemingly a generous wage, because his wage days are not ample for a life of honest industry and becoming thrift.

"Such a problem is very insistent. It can not be dodged nor solved in emergency. It demands our best thought and all our courage. Let us hope that in the search for a way to full justice in dealing with coal, we may find a suggested way of dealing with kindred problems which are ever menacing our industrial peace and hindering our full accomplishment."

The president's arrival at Cheyenne was signaled in advance to the waiting crowds through an aerial escort of five United States army planes, flying high above the train and dropping roses above the moving train. On a platform the chief executive was greeted by Governor Ross, Senator Warren and a small reception committee. After a public reception and the formal address the president left for Ogden, Utah, where he is scheduled to arrive tomorrow morning for a brief stop before motoring to Salt Lake City for an evening speech tomorrow.

URGES ENFORCEMENT OF PROHIBITION LAWS. Denver, June 25.—President Harding served notice in an address today that the federal government was determined to enforce the prohibition law even should the burden of enforcement continue to be thrown upon the states.

Moreover, the executive voiced the conviction not only that the prohibition amendment will not be repealed, but that whatever change may be made in the old act will represent the sincere purpose of effective enforcement, rather than modification of the general policy.

Striking straight out at the violators of the law, the president said the issue is fast coming to be recognized not as one between the wets and the dries, but as one between those who violate the law and those who enforce it.

"So far as the federal government is concerned," he said, "I am very sure, so far as concerns the majority of the state governments and the local governments, it will be enforced. A gratifying, indeed it may fairly be said, an amazing progress has been made in the last few years toward better enforcement."

New York Situation. While Mr. Harding made no direct reference to the situation in New York state, he did say that "the spectacle of a state nullifying its own authority, and asking the national government to take over an important part of its powers, is new."

He said that "when the implications of this strange proposal are fully understood by people and parties devoted to preserving the rights of the states, the new nullificationists, I venture to say, will discover that they have perpetrated what is likely to prove one of the historic blunders in political management."

The president disclosed that a good deal of testimony is reaching Washington that some states having prohibition enforcement codes and even laws which have been enforced "dry" laws before national prohibition are "disposed to abdicate their own police authority in this matter and to turn over the burden of prohibition enforcement to the federal authorities."

"Doubtless," he said, "this is largely due to a misconception, to the widely entertained idea that the federal government has actually taken over the real responsibility. The fact is quite the contrary. The federal government is not empowered to enforce prohibition laws. It is the duty of the states to make enforcement locally effective. It does not maintain either a police or a judicial establishment adequate to or designed for such a task. If the burden of enforcement shall continue to be increasingly thrown upon the federal government, it will be necessary, at large expense, to create a federal police authority which in time will inevitably come to be regarded as an intrusion upon and interference with the right of local authority to manage local concerns. The possibilities of disaster in such a situation hardly need to be suggested. Yet it is something that we must recognize as among the menacing in this situation."

Local Enforcement. "The federal government ought to perform, in connection with the enforcement of this policy, those functions which are obviously within its proper province. These and compliance in all its aspects as it relates to international commerce, the importation and liquor, the collection of federal revenue, the prevention of smuggling, and in general the proper realm of federal authority. But the business of local enforcement, by states and cities, ought to be in the hands of the state and local authorities, and it should be executed in all sincerity and good faith, as other laws are presumed to be executed."

"What I am saying must not be construed as indicating any relaxation of the national government's purpose to do its full duty in this matter. I have no doubt that if the burden is cast in undue proportion upon the national authority, that government will not only under this administration but under whatever others may come in the future, assume and discharge the full obligation. But I am pointing out that this ought not to be made necessary. The national policy ought to be supported by the public opinion and the administrative machinery of the whole country. For myself, I am confident that we are passing now through the most difficult stage of this matter, and that as time passes there will be a more universal acceptance by authorities everywhere of the unalterable obligation of law enforcement. The country and the nation will not permit the law of the land to be made a byword."

"It is a curious illustration of loose thinking, that some people have proposed, as a means to protecting the fullest rights of the states, that the states would abandon their part in enforcing the prohibitory policy. That means simply an invitation to the federal government to exercise powers which should be exercised by the states. Instead of being an assertion of state rights, it is an abandonment of them; it is an abdication; it amounts to a confession by the state that it doesn't choose to govern itself but prefers to turn the task, or a considerable part of it, over to the federal authority. There could be no more complete negation of state rights."

Demoralizing Factor. "I am making my appeal in this matter to the broadest and best sentiments of law-abiding Americans everywhere. We must recognize that there are some people both sides of this question in whose minds it is absolutely paramount. Some would be willing to sacrifice every other consideration of policy in order to have their own way as to this one. This constitutes one of the most demoralizing factors in the situation."

"It was very generally believed that the adoption of the constitutional amendment would take the question out of our politics. Thus it has not done so, though I venture to predict that neither of the great parties will see the time, within the lives of any who are now voting citizens, when it will declare openly for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. But despite all that, the question is kept in politics because of the almost fanatical urgency of the minority of extremists on both sides. Unless through the recognition and acceptance of the situation in its true light, through the effective enforcement of the law by all the constituted authorities, and with the acquiescence of the clearly dominant public opinion of the country, the question is definitely removed from the domain of political action, it will continue a demoralizing element in our whole public life. It will be a permanent blot to the wise determination of many issues utterly unrelated to the liquor question. It will be the means of encouraging disunity, of dividing the party, of sowing seeds of distrust upon our community, and be pointed to as justifying the charge that we are a nation of hypocrites. There can be no issue in this important to that of enforcement of the law."

Trained Members "Planted." These trained and trusted members are then "planted" in many legitimate organizations, especially those which are connected with labor, the farmer, the schools, colleges and churches. It becomes the duty of those so "planted" to slowly, but surely, gain control of all such movements, and with care and caution begin the work, first of producing the mental attitude of unrest, to be followed with distrust and class consciousness, that class hatred may follow.

The student in the schools and colleges and those of high ideals, who are prominent in many church organizations, are fruitful soil for the communist work. They are approached with a mild form of communism which even to those who know something of the teachings seem far apart from that which is now being manifested in Russia. Evils and ills of all kinds are magnified. The sincerity, or simplicity, of the individuals is played upon. Capitalism is synonymous with "great fortunes." They do not appreciate that if the "capitalist system" is destroyed, everything they hold dear and dearest is destroyed with it. The woes of the poor are painted on great canvases and through magnifying glasses these woes made tragic. The fact is that the door of the drunken lout who refuses to buy food for his family, or the lazy fellow who refuses to work, or the slovenly woman who permits her children to be in the streets, that there are such people in the world, the idealists are told, is due to the "capitalist government." Therefore, destroy this government and presto, all such persons by some magic, become good citizens.

Communist Progress Marked. Only those who have taken occasion carefully and intelligently to investigate the system of this arousing class consciousness, directed by communist agents through divers and sundry organizations that are non-communistic in their nature, can understand the marked progress that has been made in the past. And yet, if any person will stop and compare the unrest, distrust, class consciousness and class hatred of today with that of twenty years ago, for instance, the work done by communism will be clear enough.

In one document read into the record in the Forest trial, which document went into length on a scheme to "amalgamate" a large number of non-communist movements into one organization, known as the "inner circle," at Moscow say, "every member must take a vigorous part." And further in the same document instructing members how to proceed it says:

"We should show that it is untrue what we want to break up the unions; that we are the advocates of acts of individual terrorism. . . . that we represent any secret 'Russian' interests."

Many Movements Connected. In questioning the jurors in the Foster case the state asked of each venireman if he or she belonged to, or subscribed to funds for the support of, any one of the following organizations:

The League for Industrial Democracy; The Friends of Soviet Russia; The Joint Amnesty committee; The Inter-collegiate Liberal league; The Cosmopolitan club; The Federated Press; The National Bureau of Information and Education; The Fellowship of Reconciliation; The People's Legislative Service; The Rand school; The Workers' Educational League; The Woman's Trade Union league.

That the state had evidence to connect these movements, as well as large numbers of others which were not directly mentioned, with the communist movement was indicated by several attempts to inject such testimony, but ruled out under the law of evidence in Michigan.

The joint legislative committee of the state of New York, commonly known as the Lusk committee, investigating seditious activities, compiled a list of around 200 such organizations. They operate under so many names, and so often change their names when their direct communist connection is detected, that it is difficult to keep track of all of them, but they can be followed, by those who choose, for the communistic tendency of the "planted" persons will manifest itself in some form of propaganda to induce unrest, distrust, class consciousness or class hatred.

"The New York bucket shop motto is 'If at first you don't succeed, fail, fail again!'"

THE SAVANNAH RIVER.

There was completed at Savannah Saturday forenoon, by government engineers, Georgia and South Carolina congressmen, and Augusta business men, a trip by river steamer from Augusta to Savannah, that ought to have far-reaching results in opening up to more extensive navigation the waterway between these two Georgia cities.

The deepening of the Savannah river between Augusta and Savannah would be one of the most potential inland waterway developments in the South Atlantic states, and would be of untold value to all the people, not only of Georgia and South Carolina, but of the entire south.

Among those who made the trip on the steamer Altamaha, which left Augusta Friday forenoon, arriving in the port city 24 hours later, was T. J. Hamilton, editor of The Augusta Chronicle. In writing to his paper he said:

"The Savannah is supposed to have a five-foot channel, but in reality it is not five feet in low water. Therefore, the pressing problem is to get sufficient appropriation from the next congress to dredge the river and secure a year-round five-foot channel, get another boat and then begin the big drive for a seven-foot channel."

"Congressman James F. Byrnes, South Carolina; Senator Harris and Moore, of Georgia, all agree with General Jadin that the inland waterway system on the Atlantic seaboard must be completed in order to make a seven-foot channel feasible. There is a portion of the inland waterway between Beaufort, N. C., and Georgetown, S. C., that has not been developed. This project will cost six million dollars and the idea before the congressmen and senators from the South Atlantic states is to combine and urge the prompt development of this project. This will enable boats drawing seven feet of water to leave Augusta and travel to all eastern ports. Thus Augusta jobbers would receive their goods from the east in boats and barges running direct from Norfolk, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston to Augusta via Savannah, while Augusta cotton piece-goods, raw cotton, kailin and other products would be carried back to the east. All agree that this is certain to come in the next few years and Augusta will become one of the great distributing centers of the south."

This is a hopeful view, and there is not a senator or a member of the house from the south who will not aid in the consummation of this objective.

There is a greater demand today, in this hour of reconstructing commerce and industry, in the development of the inland waterways than ever before. They not only serve in relieving carrier congestion, but they provide cheaper freight rates, based on water competition, and this is essential in a great producing section like the southeast.

The Savannah river and the Altamaha system are important developments that congress cannot afford to ignore.

For the past few years there have been no new inland projects, due to the war and to the demands upon resources for other purposes, but just as it was the patriotic duty of the American people, through their legislative bodies, to support the war without reservation, just so it is their duty today to reconstruct around the new conditions produced by war.

The commercial and industrial reconstruction of any section hinges upon transportation, and the economy of transportation is next in importance to the facilities afforded by transportation.

The trip of engineers and congressmen just completed ought to be the beginning of constructive progress toward the ends sought.

Now for a trip to Arctic land. On an iceberg broad and high, Where the Polar Bear is dancing 'Neath an icicle-bordered sky!

The gold's in the land, but the digging for it is too hot for the ancient order of the Sons of Rest.

As a perfect picture of happiness, take a cornfield Georgia dark, sleeping in the hot sun with a watermelon for a pillow.

It seems that British ships use too much rum for "medicinal" purposes.

Even the weather affords a fine example of "keeping up the fire."

The French are taking no chances and even sleep with one eye open and watchful.

Atlanta still maintains her reputation as one of the coolest summer resorts in the country.

"Spring" fever comes late this year, but it's as drowsily welcome as ever.

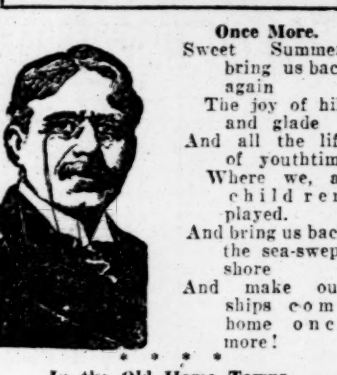

It is at least profitable to be extravagant enough to smash the handiest thermometer.

What a fine time it is for a freezing flight to the Polar regions.

England, for one, is building the biggest submarine for the preservation of "the peace of the world."

Once More.

Sweet Summer, bring us back again.

The joy of hill and glade.

And all the life of youthhood.

Where we, as children, played.

And bring us back to the sea-swept shore.

And make our ships come home once more!

In the Old Home Towns.

Mr. John Tourney has sold his farm and is now on his way to the Huber Springs Headlight.

Well, it's raining again and the creek is rising, which will delay our trip. Our supply of fish hooks is about exhausted, which makes business pretty dull. —Langley Correspondent of the Pike Courier.

Pulling wool seems to be the order of the day in Calico Rock. Charlie Stagg and Oscar Wyatt had a round about this week, but were not allowed to fight to a finish. This is only one of several that have happened there in the past few months. —Culp Correspondent of the Stone Record.

A Texas farmer wants a wife. He's a friend of Arthur Watson, of Mont. Ida, who says the Texas is ready to take his choice from a bunch of Montgomery county daisies. A wider could fill the bill. She must be able to play short on physics and long on food; make home a place worth while to live in and not a junk shop. She can be 15 per cent devil, but must average 85 per cent angel. Any lone-some, short, fat, tall, thin widow, or girl for a soul mate is eligible. —Mr. Ida Correspondent of the Montgomery County Review.

The Dreaming Children.

The Old Haunts are with us.

In the dark we hear them moan.

Miss Witchy, Miss Witchy, Leave the little folks alone!

Our mothers kissed us all goodnight, And let us dream 'till morning light!

The Old Haunts are with us

And little folks know That little folks will grow up

The same as old folks grow; But even then, as father says, "The witches will not go."

Back to Boyhood.

The Windsor Review has this reminiscence of boyhood in the old home state:

"Now that the red haw has been named as the Missouri state flower, and the shrub is to be planted in every school yard in the state, some provision must be made for growing older bushes. For what good is a red haw without a popgun? And what more real fun than to slip up on a kid, hunt a place where his shirt fits snugly against the hide, sting him right good and hear him holler? Gee! For a few days of boyhood again, with a dried herring and a buttered biscuit, a can of fishy worms, a handful of red haws and a 10-inch popgun! They are gone where the wind blows, and the when-did-you boys, while you can."

What! When!

The critical columnist of the Arkansas Gazette writes:

Over on the thumb hand side Of this page seek

A way to end profanity Among American men.

Just leave it alone And in a few years It will get so effeminate That the men will quit."

This is as the Hopkins Journal may see it—

"If the old-timers, who sigh for the girls of their youth, should see one of them coming down the street dressed as in 1890, they would laugh their heads off."

Only the Dark.

Only the darkness, where the tempests And drive the rain into the flowerless soil:

Only the darkness—here, between a grave And the high stars, and God.

Trouble Never Fails.

(From The Aurora Advertiser.)

"A woman insists that a woman's face be placed on the postage stamp. But," argues the Aurora Advertiser, "what man would want to lick a woman on the back and pound her in the face to make her stick."

Along the Way.

Along the way We'll turn the darkness Into day.

And reap from storms The rainbow's ray— If life can sing Along the way.

CIVITAN CONVENTION DELEGATES RETURN

Julian Boehm, international trustee of the International Association of Civitan Clubs, and Joe Reynolds and Dr. Earl Quillian, delegates who represented the local Civitan club, have returned to Atlanta after attending the international Civitan convention at Washington. The convention was the most successful in the history of Civitan, despite the heat, and the program was thoroughly enjoyed.

32 ALIENS GRANTED CITIZENSHIP PAPERS

Representing seven nationalities, 32 alien residents of this section Monday were granted citizenship in the United States district court, presided over by Judge Samuel H. Sibley.

Examination of the various applicants was conducted by H. B. Road, of the department of labor, who formerly resided here. Judge Sibley delivered a lecture to the new citizens on the constitution of the United States.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, June 25.—Manhattan is bath-mad. Nobody takes a walk, scarcely, without a tub before and after. Nearly every high-powered executive has a bath-mat in his office to splash about when business palls.

On Forty-second street is a bath-house half block long, where surprised ladies go to grow less corpulent, and the shopping district has many baths for women who freshen up with a sponge after an arduous shopping tour.

I remember when Richard Harding Davis, in one of his novels, had his hero take a tub each morning. He was twitted for being a "talk-stock" novelist. In fact, I believe novelists have had much to do with the bathing craze. Their heroes are forever bathing.

Shortly after Davis blundered for the bath, along came Robert W. Chambers, who went him one better. His latest novel, "The Master of the Bath," is a study in the modern bath, but took a steaming hot bath after a ride to hounds. And one of Elinor Glynn's lovers, it seems to me, did not only "tubbed" in the morning, but took a steaming hot bath after a ride to hounds.

There is an apartment house recently completed on upper Park avenue. The bathroom in each apartment is lighted by a tub. The tub is suspended down to it, and there are pin sprays, ice sprays and all sorts of gadgets.

The building was tenanted almost immediately, and the builder declares the glorified baths did the trick. Japanese, who are bath addicts, declare New York far surpasses their native land in the art of bathing.

Ancient hotels here that used to have only a certain number of rooms with baths have had them all put in every room or find them unoccupied. The other day a burglar was caught redhanded and asked if he had bathed in the hotel and had been taken to his cell. It gave one headline expert a chance to write "Bathing Burglar Bailed!"

The "poison pen" mystery that caused such a flurry in New York society recently, revealed some interesting facts about anonymous letters. It appears that almost every man in high place receives scurrilous letters. The psychoanalysts say there is a certain type of mind that delights in making others unhappy. As a rule they are unhappy themselves. If they have a scandal in their home they enjoy making others believe they are not entirely free from the same sort of unhappiness. They usually pick out husbands they know have implicit confidence in their wives, and try to spread the seeds of distrust.

It is odd how New Yorkers become put off over servility—the obsequiousness of waiters, doormen, ticket sellers in theaters gladden their lives as nothing else. To me servility has always been disgusting. It creates almost a loathing of an impersonal sort. I remember, on an Atlantic steamer, a rather cocky steward whistling as he served some refreshment to me in the smoker. I was not feeling so good—the ocean had been a bit jumpy that day. So I snorted: "Stop that infernal whistling!" His instantaneous submission and fawning apology increased my irritation. I think if he had given me the ripping hawling out I deserved, he would have elevated himself in my eyes and perhaps I might have even asked him to have some of what I was having. Fair stuff it was, too!

It is said eight out of ten men employed on New York newspapers are attempting to write fiction on the side. And many of them are winning laurels. A recent issue of a very widely circulated magazine was composed entirely of stories written by men who eight years ago were newspaper reporters. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

Just pause here, and shed a tear For one who adds another year.

This is the place in life's eternal sum Where the more we add, the more we take from.

—Lucia Lamar.

"And how are the twins today, Mrs. Ryan?" inquired the kindly old gentleman peering into a howling perambulator.

"I'm fair frazzled out," responded the weary mother. "They won't eat, nor they won't lay. They just squawk!"

—Joe Erwin, Jr.

Every body who reads knows how to cure a cold in one day, which seems to be exceedingly fast work, for a tentative diagnosis of what really ails the person who has the cold.

The diagnosis of what ails the person who has the cold is a very difficult matter, but once the diagnosis is made, the treatment is very simple.

With ivy poisoning it is just the reverse. The diagnosis—well, the patient simply announces he has ivy poisoning and that's his good.

That is, he announces he has it, then without any punctuation save perhaps a blankety blank, asks for succor.

He usually says, "I have a very bad case of ivy poisoning."

When I had the itch, I really was quite busy for a while—not seven years, but several hours. But I discovered that for attempting smuggling of drugs into America have been ordered deported, according to M. A. Cokendall, immigration inspector for this district.

The group included six Chinese and two Japanese sailors. They were arrested at various ports of entry on charges of violation of the law.

The ex-convicts have already begun their homeward trip.

Mr. Cokendall received a visit Saturday from W. M. Munter, vice-president of the bureau of immigration at Washington, who was enroute to Washington from New Orleans.

JITNEY MEN TO DROP SUIT AGAINST CITY

The suit brought by Sam Schlesinger, president of the Jitney Bus Association, for an injunction to restrain the city from enforcing the ordinance requiring each jitney operator to post a bond of $1,000 will not materialize, according to announcement Monday by James L. Key, attorney for the jitney men.

Attorney Key said he had abandoned plans for obtaining a hearing on permanent injunction due to the fact that on July 1 the new ordinance requiring a $5,000 bond instead of $1,000 goes into effect, and any action taken at present would be made void by the new ordinance.

Washington, D. C., at a nickel or dime per copy, or in a "chloride of lime" (chlorinated lime) is recommended for purifying drinking water, these directions being given: "Put one teaspoonful of the powder (chlorinated lime) into a quart bottle of water, cork it tightly, and let it stand several hours. Pour off the clear solution, and the clear solution (chlorinated lime) will be found in the bottle) into two gallons of water and let it stand for 15 minutes before using. It will purify the water excellently and is not injurious."

A. & M. LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE NAMED

Meeting at the capitol Monday morning, the legislative committee in charge of the A. & M. schools of the state, appointed a special committee to go before the legislature on all business which shall come up during the session connected with the schools. J. J. Flynn, of Griffin, is chairman of the committee, and a full program of regular business was transacted at the Monday meeting. The special committee organized Monday is composed of Josiah Blasingame, of Jersey; Mr. Strickland, of Dublin; J. Oden Persons, of Talbotton; Mrs. W. C. Clark, of Covington; Emmett J. Hunter, of Port Valley; Mrs. Betty Cobb, of Carrollton, and J. J. Flynn, of Griffin.

This committee plans to appear before the legislature and show the need of the A. & M. schools, as well as their value to Georgia. A second committee, composed of principals of the schools, was named to assist in this work. This is composed of H. R. Hunt, of Powder Springs; J. M. Thrash, of the Douglas school; and T. O. Galloway, of the Barnesville school.

Dr. M. M. Parks, state superintendent of schools, spoke at the meeting on the needs of these schools and their value to the state. The A. & M. school in the state was represented at the meeting.

DANGER SIGNALS OF INDIGESTION

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning.

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning, by physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year, when your system "lets down" in tone and vigor with the first approach of warm weather.

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical books tell us: 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up against your heart and lungs. 3. A dull, lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Headlessness, unrefreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes, pain and fluttering around the heart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestion. You are too apt to lose. You have had any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Dan-Nax, the greatest prescription ever written for a digestive tonic. Dan-Nax immediately aids and assists every one of your digestive organs, including the stomach, liver, bowels, Dan-Nax makes your digestion "perfect and complete." You feel its helpful effect from the very first dose. Get a bottle of Dan-Nax today at any drug store. Dan-Nax is so much superior to any other remedy for indigestion that the manufacturers have instructed every druggist to refund the price if you do not get relief, so it costs you nothing if you are not delighted with results. Delay might be dangerous, get Dan-Nax today.

ATLANTA GIRLS USE CIGARETTES LEAGUE DECLARES

"What is your daughter doing?" She may be smoking cigarettes. The situation is appalling. C. P. Taylor, president of the Acme Anti-Cigarette League of Atlanta, declared Monday.

Mr. Taylor, who has made serious study of the adolescent woman, declares that young girls, and their old sisters, are consuming the weed in alarming amounts. The habit is spreading, he asserts. Even girls from the best families have been found to smoke cigarettes.

Mr. Taylor declares something must be done to stop it. The main fault is with parents, he said. They take it for granted that the cigarette was made for man, Parisian boulevard and New York's underworld, and that their daughters are immune to the lure.

Mr. Taylor is the principal of the Doraville, Ga., High school and has taught in a number of leading educational institutions. The Acme Anti-Cigarette League of Atlanta has been organized one month.

Employers Endorse Program Presented By Power Company

Resolutions endorsing the transportation program of the Georgia Railway and Power company, as outlined in a petition to the city council, which was recently approved by that body, were unanimously adopted by the Employers' Association of Atlanta at a special meeting, it was learned Monday.

The association also pledges its support to the power company in carrying out the program.

The resolution also denounces the operation of jitneys on the streets, terming them a constant menace, and declaring that they do not contribute commensurately to the upkeep of the city.

VARIETY AT CARNIVAL

Dancers, Wildmen and Dainties for Church Entertainment.

Characters ranging from the dainty dancer of the bonnie hills of old Scotland to the wildman of the depths of darkest Africa will be offered at the carnival to be given at 113 Cleburne street, Monday night, June 25, beginning at 8 o'clock in the afternoon and lasting through the evening.

Fortune tellers, pony and billy goat races, refreshments, including "red" lemonade, are a few of the features of the carnival. In the evening, Griffith Edwards' Marionettes will give a performance. There will be no admission to the grounds.

ATLANTA EXCHANGE TO HOLD BOX SUPPER

With their wives and sweethearts, members of the Atlanta Exchange club will hold their first annual dinner at the Horns club at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and if the weather permits the dinner will be spread on the grounds of the club. Plans were made for a "box supper" instead of a formal dinner. The dinner will replace the regular weekly meeting of the club.

KNOWLES CHARGED WITH ATTEMPTED ASSAULT ON GIRL

Rome, Ga., June 25.—(Special.)—Mack Knowles, young white man of this city, was today bound over to the superior court under $500 bond charged with attempted assault on a 16-year-old girl of this city. Fred Mathis, arrested with Knowles, was released.

The girl's testimony was positive and unqualified, supported in the main by that of Mathis and another girl who was present.

Death Overtakes World War Veteran Going Home to Die

Rome, Ga., June 25.—(Special.)—With his father waiting to meet him here to carry him home to die, Thomas Wheeler, a world war veteran of Rock Run, Ala., died on the train between Chattanooga and Rome.

Saturday the father, after having spent the night alone in the hotel room he had engaged for his son, left Rome accompanying the dead body of his boy.

The young man had been at a veterinary hospital at Johnson City, Tenn., but when told that he could not live, expressed his intention of going back home to die. His father did not make the trip to Tennessee because of the expense, but planned to meet his son here.

The train which was to have brought the boy came in 30 minutes late and his father was told that the delay was caused by his son's having died on the train just after it left the shed at Chattanooga, and the train had been held until an undertaker's wagon could come for it.

Free-for-All Fight Near Douglas Ends In Death of Nettles

Douglas, Ga., June 25.—As the result of a free for all fight near here yesterday Perry Nettles in dead and Will Wright is in the local hospital at the point of death.

Officers have not learned the cause of the trouble, but assert that both men were drinking. They say that Nettles first attacked Wright with a knife and cut him severely and that Wright obtained a revolver and fatally wounded Nettles. Both men were tenants on the farm of J. L. Lerner. Little hope is held out for Wright's recovery.

Britain May Ask For Investigation Of Ellis Island

London, June 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Andrew W. Mellon, American secretary of the treasury, will probably be consulted by British officials upon his arrival here with regard to alleged indignities forced upon British subjects landing at Ellis Island, the house of commons was informed today by Ronald McNeill, under secretary for foreign affairs.

The subject was brought up by Captain Viscount Curzon, member for the south division of Battersea, who called attention to the case of an unnamed English merchant captain, who he said, was made to land at Ellis Island on April 28 last, placed in a wire cage with 30 foreigners, and afterward forced to strip for examination, although his passport was in perfect order and he had been told by the American consul that there would be no difficulty.

Under Secretary McNeill, replying to the member, said he would gladly receive the captain at the foreign office if the latter desired to tell of his case. He thought there was apparently ground for representations to the American government, provided the captain allowed his name to be quoted.

Mr. McNeill added that, in the absence of any guarantee that innocent travelers would not be subjected to these indignities, he asserted that the remedy was for British subjects to refrain from going to the United States.

Viscount Curzon suggested that the government get in touch with Secretary Mellon upon his arrival to see if it was possible to arrange to avoid such treatment, and Mr. McNeill said that probably would be done.

ALLIES WAITING ON FRANCE TO ACT

modities from Germany shall be applied to reparations.

Not in Agreement.

As to some of these conditions Britain does not agree, and as to all of them Britain has asked more details and clarification. It is obvious that if France and Britain can come to a meeting of minds on these points, the road will have been laid for settlement of the whole reparations problem.

The question that besets every close observer, however, is whether France really wants to make progress toward settling reparations. Certainly she shows less eagerness in this direction than Britain, or even than Belgium or Italy. In many quarters France is charged with wanting not a settlement which will lead to payment of reparations, but continuation of an unsettled which will possibly end in breaking up Germany.

The truth may be that France does not know her mind clearly. Certainly anyone can put himself in France's place and realize that she would not be made desperately unhappy to receive in the morning papers some day that Germany had blown up into twenty pieces and would no longer be a nation.

A blow-up would mean that France would get no reparations whatever, and this would result in the French having to recoup the loss in the French franc by the German mark, and in other serious economic consequences to France. But this sort of economic debacle is not easily visualized in advance by the man in the street.

In the popular sense, the immediate effect in France of an explosion of Germany would be relief and satisfaction—nor need any one wonder that this would be so.

Would Be Joint Note.

We should now soon whether France is going to agree with Britain on a program looking to a settlement, and payment of reparations. If they agree, the next step would be a joint note to Germany, followed possibly by a general conference of the allies, in the shape, perhaps, of a regularly holding the long postponed Brussels conference. But it France and Britain do not agree, but come to a mutually admitted deadlock, the situation will be set for a new and strikingly different phase of history in modern Europe.

In the meantime a third factor, namely, the internal state of Germany, approaches a crisis. Up to the present, for reasons inherent in the nature of inflation, the German industrial market has been enriched by the depreciation of the mark and have been able to keep their workmen from being out of employment and the end of the joy ride has been reached, with a condition which will bear down with heavy suffering on the working population. Nevertheless, the best informed people believe that the difficulty and discipline of the German people, forestalling yet an imminent danger of a country-wide explosion. SAYS GERMAN STANDS FIRM

Berlin, June 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—In a speech at the opening of the agricultural exposition in Koenigsberg, East Prussia, yesterday, Chancellor Cuno declared the spirit of resistance and the will to resist firm as ever among the Ruhr population. This convinced him, he said, that the entire German people would show themselves as unwavering in political and economic matters as the people of the Ruhr and Rhineland.

Nothing had been left undone to find a reasonable, supportable and final solution of the reparations problem, he declared. The German memorandum had achieved on the whole what was expected, namely, that it would convince the world of Germany's honest desire to live at peace with her neighbors and not to promise reparations but to pay them by the exercise of the utmost strength of the German people.

That the Germans should be able to say: "At the conclusion of these deliberations stands freedom."

Foreign press comment admitted that progress had been made. He went on, although France was not yet ready for negotiations and still demanded abandonment of the passive resistance which, he asserted, had not been created by the government, but by the people's will. No government could end this, and moreover, no German government could wish to end it so long as its abandonment did not show a sure path to a solution of justice and equity.

"We shall reach this goal sooner," concluded Herr Cuno, "the stronger our people in the occupied territory show themselves and the stronger the united will of the people of unoccupied Germany prove to be."

Street Fighting Reported

Berlin, June 25.—Street fighting occurred in Eisleben, Prussian Saxony, between nationalists and communists, on the occasion of the unveiling of a memorial to the assassinated German foreign minister, Dr. Walter Rathenau, the Central News states. Two of the demonstrators are reported dead and 25 seriously injured.

SOLONS ACTIVE AS LEGISLATURE OPENS

B. Russell, Jr., of Barrow county, will be nominated Wednesday in the house for speaker pro tem without opposition.

Upon his return to Atlanta Dr. Craig R. Arnold, of Lumpkin, made this statement:

"In view of the fact that there is certain very important legislation in which I am vitally interested, together with other legislative matters that are going to put upon me a very great deal of work, I have concluded, after my return among the boys, that it will be impossible for me to carry an additional burden, and for that reason I shall not continue in the race for speaker pro tem."

Senate's Secretary Opens Office

Major Devereaux F. McClatchey, who has seen more legislatures come and go in Georgia than any other man, and who will be connected with this year's assembly, has opened his office as secretary of the senate, ready for the job of starting the ball rolling Wednesday.

Hosts of candidates for various positions in the house and senate were hard at work Monday seeking to aid their causes. Would-be doorkeepers, messengers, pages and sergeant-at-arms swarmed around and it is evident that there will be some warm contests for these minor appointments.

And, meanwhile, Fulton county's feminine contribution, Representative Bessie Kempton, beautiful and gracious, weaved her way across the lobby, greeted joyously by all, and evincing this early what a grateful touch of pulchritudinous color she is bringing to the lawmaking halls.

The Fulton representatives, besides Miss Kempton, who are John Y. Smith and Joseph O. Wood, with Senator E. M. Smith, of McDonough, representing this district, are reported as planning a meeting sometime this week to discuss local legislative proposals.

Grant to Withdraw

Monday night the indications were that the fight for doorkeeper of the senate, between Perry Griffin and Mr.

Grant will be entirely settled today and only Griffin's name will be put in nomination. Mr. Grant to be made one of the assistants. The race between Strother and Hooks is still on for senate messenger, with indications that Strother will sew it up.

Speaker Neill, who has no opposition, has been industriously engaged all day making up his tentative committee lists, and there is reason to expect that he may be able to make his announcements by Monday, which will break all legislative record for quick committee appointments. It appears a certainty Culpepper will head the appropriations. Elders will head education, J. C. Houston will head railroads in the house, while the other big committees have not yet been determined.

Miss Bessie Kempton, of the Fulton delegation, will be given one of the choice chairmanships.

Senate Committees.

Among the senate committee assignments which are practically certain are Ernest Smith for constitutional amendments; J. Glenn Stovall for education; Mason, of Hart county, for ways and means. Pace to head the rules committee already is a certainty.

The Carswell-Munday race was running strong Monday, and Senator Munday issued the following statement from his headquarters, 301-303 Kimball, in respect to the race for presidency of the senate:

"From the number of pledges and assurances of support I received, I am confident of election. I have carefully gone over the situation with my senator friends and others, and they share this confidence with me."

Interest in Senate Presidency.

Interest centered in the race for the office of president of the senate, which lies between W. M. Mundy, of Cedartown, from the 35th district, and George Carswell, of Wilkinson.

Senator Mundy opened headquarters in room 301 and 303 of Kimball, Monday, where he will keep open house to all members of the legislature and their friends. Senator Carswell's headquarters were located on the second floor of the Kimball.

Speaking of his candidacy for the presidency of the senate, Mr. Mundy said yesterday, "From a number of pledges and assurances of support received, I am confident of election. I have gone carefully over the situation with my senator friends and others, and they share this confidence with me."

Commenting upon the general situation facing the legislature this year, Mr. Mundy said:

"There is too much legislation, but our tax laws must be stabilized, and the burden of taxation must be equitably distributed. The state institutions must be adequately supported so that they may function properly. Industrial development must be encouraged by proper legislation, and not held up by too frequent changes or threatened changes of our fundamental laws. If we are careful and conservative in the laws we make, Georgia will soon become the greatest agricultural and industrial center in the South."

Predicts Legislature's Success.

"I predict a splendid service by the incoming legislature. We have the advantage of the efforts and achievements of previous legislatures to warn us of the dangers of unnecessary legislation and to show us the real needs of our state."

There will be an important change in the committee arrangements of the house this year, with the division of the ways and means committee into two, a ways and means and an appropriations committee.

Interesting committee appointments known to date include that of George Langford, chairman of the appropriations committee in the senate, and J. W. Culpepper, chairman of the appropriations committee in the house. Steve Pace will be vice president of the rules committee in the senate, while, as stated above, Herman Miller will be vice chairman for the corresponding body in the house. Governor-elect Clifford M. Walker.

S.S.S. keeps away Pimples

THERE are thousands of women who wonder why their complexions do not improve in spite of all the face treatments they use. They should not continue to wonder. Eruptions come from blood impurities and a lack of rich blood cells. S. S. S. is acknowledged to be one of the most powerful, rapid and effective blood cleansers known. S. S. S. builds new blood cells. This is why S. S. S. routs out of your system the impurities which cause boils, pimples, blackheads, acne, blotches, eczema, tetter, rash, S. S. S. is a remarkable flesh-builder. That's why underweight people can quickly build up their lost flesh, get back their normal weight, pink, plump cheeks, bright eyes, and "pep."

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

FLAHLIVE AND

Hollis Sullivan Will Meet Jordan Sheppard, of Macon In Ten-Round Semi-Final

Battling Benson Will Fight Ray Dowd in Eight-Round Bout and Vinson Meets Kid Carver as Curtain Raiser.

TONIGHT'S PROGRAM.

Hooty Flahive, Macon vs. Billy Dale, 10 rounds; Jordan Sheppard, Macon vs. Hollis Sullivan, 10 rounds; Battling Benson vs. Ray Dowd, 8 rounds; Sailor Vinson vs. Kid Carver, 8 rounds.

With better accommodations at Spiller's fight emporium across the street from Ponce de Leon park arranged for and all of the participants of the card being sponsored by the 10th cavalry expected to arrive today, everything is in readiness for the scrap.

Hooty Flahive, the popular little Macon fighter, who has made such a sensational comeback in the fight game recently, is slated for the main event with Billy Dale, a local boy.

Flahive will arrive this morning with Jordan Sheppard, another Macon fighter who is meeting Hollis Sullivan, the popular little local fighter in the ten-round semi-final.

Flahive has made rapid strides in the fight game since his recent comeback.

Back. Hooty retired from the ring for several months after being knocked out by Billy Dale last Labor Day. He has been winning consistently and has been meeting some of the best preliminary fighters in this part of the country.

There is also a lot of interest in the semi-final as Sullivan is one of the most popular fighters in Atlanta and has a great following among the fans.

He was booked on the last card originally with Sheppard, but Sheppard was unable to fill the engagement and Harry Allen, another Macon fighter was booked for the bout.

Are Evenly Matched. Sullivan will be meeting a real scrapper in Sheppard, who has fought Allen to a draw, so the fighters are evenly matched.

Two eight-round preliminaries have been booked with Battling Benson and Ray Dowd, both local boys who are evenly matched.

All of the fighters are well known to the local fans and from indications a large crowd will be on hand tonight when the doors are opened.

Tickets were put on sale Saturday and check of the places last night indicated that a capacity house will be on hand. Ladies will be admitted free and popular prices will prevail.

Many improvements have been made at the bowl and the fans can be assured of every comfort.

CRACKERS AND PELS RAINED OUT IN NEW ORLEANS

Double-Header Scheduled For Today; Niehaus-Karr Probable Cracker Twirlers

Crackers Crippled by Loss of Barber and Killinger, Who Are Out Because Of Injuries and Sickness.

New Orleans, La., June 25.—(Special.)—The Cracker-Pel baseball game was postponed today because of wet grounds and Manager Larry Gilbert announced last night after a consultation with Manager Miller of the Pelicans that a double header will be played tomorrow afternoon. The first game will start at 2 o'clock.

Otto Miller and his Cracker baseball team have every reason to be in the world to feel gloomy at present for they recalled that the Atlanta base ball team had not won a single game either here or in Atlanta since they were blown to the lead in the sixth and seventh games were tied in the sixth and seventh.

Another good reason that Atlanta players are not in the best of spirits is because two of their mates are out of the lineup. Glenn Killinger is out with an injured arm and Turner Barber was recently called home because of illness of his wife. That alone is enough to make any team discouraged when playing the leading team in the league, but the Crackers have been noted this season for their ability to come back in the pinches.

Manager Gilbert will most likely send two of his best bats against the Crackers in an attempt to climb still further up in the percentage column. Winn and "Dixie" Walker will be the pitching selection for New Orleans while Benny Karr, the star slapper of Atlanta and Niehaus will probably be the Cracker selections.

The Atlanta team lost both ends of the double header Sunday afternoon and also lost the services of a battery, a second baseman and a first baseman in the melee because of the running of the umpires.

Both Brennan and Gorda figured in the Sunday afternoon Cracker banishment from the park. The Crackers have no particular love for Umpire Gorda because of his action in Atlanta Friday afternoon on a play that spoiled what looked like an old Cracker rally that has won many games in the southern circuit.

With Killinger and Barber out of the lineup the Pels have an excellent chance to increase their percentage in the league standing.

Barber, although he has not played since Sunday, this season, seems to be one of the main cogs in the Cracker lineup according to the talk among the Cracker club Sunday. His loss has apparently dealt a severe blow to the Atlanta team for his hitting will be severely missed.

The Pel victories over the Crackers Sunday afternoon sent the Atlanta team to fourth place in the league standing.

Americus and Albany Tie In Opening Day Contest

Errors Prove Costly for Sumter County Outfit and Albany Makes Three Runs in One Inning.

Americus, Ga., June 25.—(Special.)

Rain which began in the last half of the seventh inning broke up one of the prettiest games ever played here today while 600 enthusiastic fans cheered madly at the opening game of the south Georgia loop circuit in Americus.

A couple of errors, pulled by Brown, playing left field for Americus, proved costly for the locals. The game belonged to Americus until the third when Brown's failure to handle Cooper's long fly let two Albany runners cross the rubber, this being followed by Cameron's safety to right for two bags, McCullough scoring. This ended the run-getting for Albany.

Americus scored in the first when Pinkerton got on a pass, stole second and scored on Parker's hit to right. In the fourth Jim Clements laced out a homer over the short field fence and in the seventh Laird scored on a hit to left for two sacks and on Collier's single. Dows was caught at the plate trying to beat out the throw and this ended the scoring for both sides.

Just at this juncture rain began falling heavily and Umpire Wagon, called the game off.

PASTORS OPPOSE DRY LAW REPEAL

Asserting that wet politicians throughout the country had renewed their attacks upon the eighteenth amendment and that it had been publicly announced that a member of the Georgia house of representatives would introduce a bill to repeal all state prohibition laws, both Baptist and Methodist ministers Monday, in separate sessions, adopted resolutions protesting strongly against any move toward modification of the state prohibition laws, "unless it be to strengthen them."

This action followed the adoption of similar resolutions Sunday morning by the congregations of several Atlanta churches.

The Baptist ministers also adopted a resolution asking the general assembly to enact the bill proposed by Representative A. J. Woodruff, of DeKalb county, which would abolish pool rooms.

The Baptist resolution was signed by Rev. J. A. Crumley and Rev. W. H. Barrett. The Methodist ministers were Rev. S. R. Bell, Rev. J. H. Enkes, Rev. W. H. LaPrade, Jr., and Rev. J. B. Mitchell.

Resolutions Adopted.

The resolutions adopted separately by both the Baptist and Methodist ministers in reference to prohibition laws are as follows:

"Whereas, wet politicians throughout the country have renewed their attacks on the eighteenth amendment and other prohibition laws; and

"Whereas, it has been publicly announced that a member of the house would offer a bill to repeal all state prohibition laws; and

"Whereas, such attacks on our constitutional and statutory laws inevitably tend to encourage violations of law and to bring our federal and state governments into contempt, thus inducing anarchy;—

"Therefore, We do most solemnly protest to the legislature of Georgia against any modification of our state prohibition laws, unless it be to strengthen them;

"And we earnestly request the committee on temperance to kill in committee any wet bill that may be directed against the fundamental law, and by their action do their part to encourage our law-enforcing officers and prevent the efforts to bring back this greatest enemy of God and man—the traffic in alcoholic beverages."

Methodists Act.

Resolutions protesting suggested moves to repeal the state prohibition law were adopted by the congregation of the Trinity Methodist church and that of the Grace Methodist church Sunday. The Men's Bible class of St. Mark's Methodist church adopted similar resolutions. With 200 members in the class, the resolutions were said to have been adopted with a unanimous vote.

Dr. Costen J. Harrell, pastor of the First Methodist church, declared in his sermon Sunday that he felt sure the "moral conscience of Georgia would unite against a repeal."

THE CONSTITUTION, ATLANTA, GA., TUESDAY, JUNE 26, 1923.

EXCELLENT ROADS NOW FROM GEORGIA TO JACKSONVILLE

"Two excellent roads from Georgia to Jacksonville, Fla., are now ready for use," was the message that Mayor John T. Alsop, Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla., who is in Atlanta on a business trip, had for the motorists of this state Monday. According to Mayor Alsop much unfavorable comment has been directed at the condition of the roads from this state to the Florida city in the past, but the completion of a new $1,000,000 road from Jacksonville to Lake City, Fla., by way of Valdosta, and the resurfacing of the Waycross-to-Jacksonville highway gives Georgia motorists the best of road service to the city that claims the "greatest beach in the south."

Mr. Alsop was unstinted in his praise of the public spirit of the Atlanta citizens and claims that he is endeavoring to instill the same civic pride and progressiveness into people of Jacksonville.

Born in Cordele, Ga., Mr. Alsop claims that he has a personal interest in the affairs of the "Cracker state" while his connection with the Southern Enterprises, Inc., keeps him in close touch with Atlanta business circles.

BISHOP AINSWORTH OPPOSES REPEAL

Declarine he doubts that the people have been heard from yet, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of the Methodist church, today issued a statement attacking B. J. Fowler and Nat. R. Winslow, two of Bibb's three representatives in the legislature, for their stand in favor of the repeal of the bond-day prohibition law in Georgia.

"Macon, aspiring to become more widely known as a center of education and culture as well as a city of progressive industry, is not willing to be represented by men who want to turn back the hands of the clock," said Bishop Ainsworth.

"If our legislatures want to serve the state in a way that will command the grateful remembrance of their people, let them give their strength to some constructive legislation that Georgia deeply needs, and not to these measures of repeal, which every boot-legger and booze lover and free-liver in the land is fighting to secure."

What Georgia Needs.

"If our legislatures want to curb lynching and remove officers who conspire with the lawless," Georgia needs a just system of taxation that will save the state and its institutions from humiliation. Georgia needs a much more liberal program of education for her youth. Here can be found an ample field for Georgia's legislative statesmanship, and, incidentally, they might pass a law to close pool rooms. They are nearly everywhere and a rendezvous for the idle and vicious. Many states have already closed them.

"And then they might pass a bill to run out the chairvoyant quacks, who are camped around in the suburbs of every Georgia city, preying upon the purses of silly women and old-maid men. People who haven't sense enough to keep away from the clutches of such fakers need to be protected by the law."

JUBILEE PAGEANT PRIZE IS OFFERED

With interest growing greater each day, plans for the gigantic "Diamond Jubilee" to be staged here in conjunction with the Southeastern Fair, October 6 to 13, are rapidly being formulated. Announcement was made Monday of a scenario committee, which has been appointed to interest Atlantans and all those familiar with Atlanta history in composing a scenario for the pageant and to offer a $50 cash prize to the composer of the accepted scenario.

This scenario must embrace true historic facts, and must depict the growth of Atlanta from the humble little village of seventy-five years ago to one of the south's greatest cities of today.

Citizens who have watched Atlanta develop into its present state will be requested to aid in this work. Ivan E. Allen, chairman of the scenario committee, expressed himself as being very anxious to interest Atlanta, and every individual who has the city's interest at heart, in compiling the history upon which the scenario will be based.

Want "Home Talent" Pageant.

"Since announcement of plans for the 'Diamond Jubilee' we have been besieged with letters from a great number of promoters who would gladly furnish the scenario and stage the celebration," Mr. Allen said. "But that is exactly what we do not want. It is the committee's wish that the jubilee in its entirety be sponsored and worked out by Atlanta people."

"With this end in view we have organized the scenario committee and offer a cash prize of $50 for the best scenario. It has also been announced that Mayor Sims has offered a prize of a similar sum."

"There are few cities in the south as well equipped for a celebration of this nature and magnitude as Atlanta. Lakewood park is an ideal place. With the spacious lake and roomy grounds, all fenced and well kept, a more suitable spot could not be found."

"If the people of this city grasp the spirit and go into the work with the zeal that it deserves, the 'Diamond Jubilee' will prove one of the greatest celebrations ever conducted in Atlanta, and possibly in America."

The scenario committee is composed of the following: Chairman, Ivan E. Allen, Walter E. Cooper, W. H. Moore, Mrs. T. T. Stevens, E. H. Quinn, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Claude L. Ashley, Miss Mabel Kendrick and Victor Kriegerbaum.

This committee will meet in the near future and will announce definite rules and requirements for the scenario contest.

The general executive committee, which was to have met Monday, postponed its meeting to a later date in the week, it was announced.

MAY PASS BUDGET OVER SIMS' VETO

Several members of city council were preparing Monday for the first time since Mayor Walter A. Sims assumed office to attempt overriding his veto of the June finance sheet when it is presented for reconsideration in council next Monday afternoon. The sheet was adopted by council at the last session, and was vetoed last Friday by Mayor Sims.

In vetoing the sheet Mayor Sims charged that it was based on over-anticipated revenues and that it would leave the city treasury with a large deficit at the end of the year. The mayor charged that various city departments are "top-heavy with useless employees, many of whom are kept on the city payroll for the influence they wield in city elections."

Alderman I. N. Ragdale, chairman of the finance committee, the only member of the aldermanic board voting against adoption of the sheet following its amendment in council, congratulated Mayor Sims on his veto of the sheet Monday morning.

"I want to take this occasion to compliment the mayor on his courageous stand," declared Alderman Ragdale. "Any one who has been around the city hall for any length of time knows that there are unnecessary workers on the city pay rolls. I, like other members of the finance committee, regret to see any city worker lose his position, but we members of council charged with the duty of expending the taxpayers' money must do so as economically as possible."

The original finance sheet provided for abolition of 59 positions in the various departments of the city government. An amendment submitted by Councilman Harry York providing for reinstatement of these employees was adopted by council and later approved by the aldermanic board.

A two-thirds majority of council's members would be necessary to override the mayor's veto, it was pointed out by councilman leaders. It is known that council stands divided on the matter, but it is predicted when the sheet is presented again for reconsideration.

deJarnette, Cecil hotel, Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Middlebrooks, Atlanta; and Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta Conventions bureau.

The meetings are being held in different sections of the state to get the hotel men more in touch with one another and create a more co-operative fellowship among them, not only for their good and protection, but for the benefit of the traveling public, in order to discuss the particular needs of their sections of the state and the best methods and procedure that can be carried out to modernize them and systematize the service rendered to the public at the best nominal cost to all concerned.

Another district meeting will be held on July 20 at the Hartwell hotel, of Hartwell, Ga., for the northeast section of the state, at which time J. G. Craft, the operator, will be host, having extended his invitation at the summer meeting of the association held in Atlanta several months ago.

News of Society and Woman's Work

Series of Beautiful Parties Honor Popular Bride-Elect

Leading the social calendar Monday were three beautiful events honoring Miss Katherine Dickey, whose marriage to Arthur Chambers Stevens, of Savannah, will take place Wednesday. Miss Marion Smith was hostess at a dinner-dance in the evening at the Georgian Terrace for Miss Dickey and Mr. Stevens.

The tables placed in the palm room were handsomely appointed. Tall baskets of gladioli and lilies were used in the decoration and silver candelabras holding lighted golden tapers, alternating with silver cornucopias of glass fruits, and miniature brides and grooms, further enhanced the decorations.

A popular orchestra provided music for dancing.

The guests included Misses Dickey, Ernestine Campbell, Anne Reed, Catherine Hook, Wilhelmine Perdue, Mary Malone and Mrs. George Marion Fletcher.

Arthur Stevens, Hugh Bell, Jack Milstead, Jack Lindsey, Frank Owens, Armand Hunter, of Savannah; Frank Howden, of Savannah; Curry Moon, Richard Hall, Harry Reick, William Wilson, T. A. Bryson, Horace Battey and Courtney Tew, of Savannah; William Dickey, of New York; Stephen Callaway, Winifer Ramsey, Rhonda Perdue, John Grant, B. D. Calhoun, Robert Jones, William Satterwhite.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Dana Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. John Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Jefferson, all of Savannah; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Dickey and Mrs. H. F. Stevens.

In the afternoon Miss Dickey was the central figure at a bridge-ten given by Miss Ernestine Campbell at her home in Druid Hills.

Garden flowers of pastel shades in silver baskets were attractively arranged in the rooms where the game was played. Tea was served at the group tables following the game.

The honor guest was presented with a piece of lingerie. French novelties were presented the winners of top score and consolation prizes.

Preceding the party of Monday afternoon, Mrs. William F. Spaulding entertained at a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club for Miss Dickey and the members of the wedding party.

The luncheon table was placed on the east terrace of the club. A large basket of pink gladioli adorned the center of the table. Miniature figures of a wedding party marked the guests' places.

Mrs. Spaulding was gown in a pale gray georgette crepe, worn with a gray hat.

Miss Dickey wore a smart gown of Alice blue trimmed with white kid and worn with a white kid hat.

Dinner-Dance Is Enjoyed At East Lake Country Club

The members of East Lake Country Club enjoyed an evening of cool breezes, and delightful entertainment at the regular informal dinner-dance Saturday night. The sun parlor and terrace gallery, where the tables were grouped, were decorated with a profusion of lovely garden flowers. Dinner was served at eight o'clock, followed by dancing. Miss Nell Brunson Weds Mr. Cater In Perry, Ga.

Perry, Ga., June 25.—(Special).—At the home of the bride's parents, Judge and Mrs. C. E. Brunson, Wednesday evening, at 7:30 o'clock, June 20, Miss Nell Brunson and Thomas J. Cater were married. Rev. W. H. Lord, the Baptist pastor, performing the ceremony.

The wedding march was played by Miss Jimmie Hogg, of Buena Vista, accompanied by Mrs. C. G. Harris on the violin. Clarence Brunson, brother of the bride, sang "Until." Just after the song Catherine Martin, Bobb Cater Massee and Billie Massee came out on the porch bearing a daisy chain, through which the bride party entered, composed of Mrs. S. L. Norwood, Jr., and Miss Scourie, of Perry; Mrs. Charles Allen, of Northham; Miss Corinne Duncan, of Atlanta; Misses Elizabeth and Dorothy Brunson, sisters of the bride, and Mrs. William Massee, sister of the groom. They were all beautifully dressed in dresses of tulle and satin, and wearing a full veil caught in hair by orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of daisies and ferns. She was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Dr. Duncan Cater, his brother. Punch was served on the porch, and two punch bowls presided over by Misses Emily Martin, Addie Cater Martin, Martha Cooper and Laura Gilbert.

Assisting in receiving were Mrs. P. H. Skellie, Mrs. R. L. Marchman, Mrs. J. D. Martin, Jr., Mrs. T. D. Mason and Mrs. E. W. Traylor. The home was beautifully decorated with small colored electric lights, ferns and flowers. The ceremony was performed under the small colored electric lights in one end of the porch, in which was constructed the bridal altar.

Mr. and Mrs. Cater left by motor after the ceremony, going to Atlanta, from which they will extend their wedding tour to other points.

Al Fresco Dinner For Miss Montag And Mr. Ferst

A beautiful event of Monday evening was the al fresco dinner given by Mrs. M. A. Ferst and Miss Marie Ferst, at their home on Oakdale road, in compliment to Miss Sylvia Montag and Mr. Frank Ferst, whose marriage will be solemnized Tuesday. The dinner was held following the wedding rehearsal at the Ingleside Country club Monday afternoon, the guests including the members of the bridal party.

Colorful lights were used in decorating the sloping lawns surrounding the terrace where the dinner was placed. Natural shrubbery, alternating with baskets of flowering plants, formed a most effective setting. The table was overlaid with a handsome mosaic cloth, and held in the center a wedding cake artistically decorated with pink and white roses and green tulle. Silver candelabra, holding rose-colored lighted tapers and silver compotes of honeysuckle further adorned the table. Attractive favors, drawn from the center of the cake marked the guests' places. Mrs. Ferst wore canary-colored chiffon embroidered in silver. Miss Ferst was gown in a frock of apricot chiffon. Miss Montag wore orchid chiffon. An orchestra, hidden by a natural screen of beautiful shrubbery, provided music during the dinner. Later the guests danced on the terrace.

R., are requested to file their applications immediately with the scholarship chairman, Mrs. Walter Scott Coleman, Juniper terrace, apartment 18.

Hebrew Aid Will Meet.

An important meeting of the Hebrew Orphans Aid will be held Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Ernst Horwitz on Brainerd road.

Mrs. B. M. Boykin Calls Meeting.

Mrs. B. M. Boykin requests everyone invited to serve on the women's committee of entertainment for the Elks' convention to meet at the Atlanta Woman's club Thursday morning at 11 o'clock to complete details connected with the afternoon tea to be given at the Woman's club to the wives of visiting Elks, July 10, and with the drive to Stone Mountain arranged for these women visitors on Wednesday morning, July 11.

Avoid Embarrassment. If you will tie the ribbon of your canvas shoes at the bottom of the left shoulder strap, instead of in the center, you will avoid lingerie ribbon peeping out above the neckline of your dress, should the dress slip down.

Mrs. George Hinman Discusses Work of Modern Artists

Mrs. George P. Hinman, prominent Atlantan, who is in Buffalo, N. Y., where she attended the seventeenth annual art exhibition of the Buffalo Fine Arts academy.

"I have just returned from a visit to the Albright Art gallery, that magnificent Ionic structure which, with its surrounding park of many acres, was the princely gift of Langdon Albright only a few years ago. In a short time what wonders have been accomplished, not only in the way of a permanent collection but in the way of landscape gardening. It certainly is the most beautiful site of any art gallery I have ever visited. Situated on an elevation, it looks down upon a vista of rare beauty. A well wooded lake winds in and out and is lost among the trees; on all sides are great trees and shady paths. Said Mrs. George P. Hinman, who is in Buffalo, where she attended the 17th annual art exhibition of the Buffalo Fine Arts academy. "Many of the permanent pictures have been removed for the present in order to make room for the annual exhibit of modern art, which is very modern and truly inspiring, those 200 pictures and 100 small bronzes so carefully chosen that each one is a joy to behold. Wake up, you worshippers of the past and know that marvelous work is being done by the American artist of today. I will confess that for myself this art has stirred me to the very depths of my soul as no Renaissance art ever has done, and I fairly revel in its dash, its daring, its riot of color, and above all its meaningfulness. The artist of today is picturing his very soul, and when there is anything in his soul worth picturing it is sure to strike a responsive chord in the soul of the beholder if he has anything in his soul that is worth striking. "Nineteenth Century Art. "In the 19th century art passed through three distinct phases. First came pseudo-classicism; next came romanticism, then realism. Impressionism was the last word in realism, and Pointillism, as expressed by Monet, was the last breath of that word. Realism could go no further. The artist had become a human camera, as nearly perfect as possible. With the chaos and turmoil of modern life and chaos in art, and art in its search for light passed through cubism, futurism and various other isms, and now has emerged into the light. It has not cast aside these isms. Like the artist of the middle Renaissance, who gathered under themselves all the best of the art and effort of the 15th century, and made it the means of broadening their own art, so the modern artists have gathered the best of all the isms of the past and used them to enrich the present. We have reached the period of intuition in art. The impressionists eliminated, or tried to eliminate, all self. They painted without emotion, and excited no emotion in the beholder. But the modern artists are eliminating, or trying to eliminate, everything but self. The king is dead! Long live the king! The era is ending with this modern art, and have spent hours drinking in its beauty. "My friend Harry and I are visiting the Albright Art gallery today and selecting the pictures we want to buy. Which is the picture I really must have if I can have but one?"

"O! I think it will be 'The Mist Maidens,' by Arthur T. Spear—those charming, shadowy creatures swinging through sunny space, trailing behind them their streamers of billowy, mauve mist—fascinate me. Pen prances along through the air beside them in gay abandon, playing his pipes in wildest glee for the maidens to dance by. Yes, I am charmed by the delicate imagination of the picture. "There is that other picture by George Alfred Williams, 'Merging of Spring and Summer.' From the upper left corner indistinctly defined maidens wrapped in delicate gauze emerge forth from a region of misty spring to meet summer, all clad in warm reds, and together they mingle, the green and the red forming a harmonious whole. The conception is original, and the coloring satisfying. Well, I might let you have that one, Harry, or we might draw straws to see which one would have the chance. Either picture would be a joy to possess. "For my next picture I am obliged to have that little one of 'Spring in the Park.' Its silvery greens following the line of the lake, and the blue reflecting in the corner of the lake, and the touch of warm pink on one side would make me dream of spring on the coldest winter day. "Then I must have sea piece. That one of Frederick Waugh's, I think, where the water flashes and crashes and dashes up into wild whirlpools of foaming mountains, and falls into stretches of deepest blue green, then tears restlessly on into other mountains of foam. O! but it is a wild picture, and fairly sweeps me along with its resistless passion. I am glad to look at the suggestion of rest in the faint pink glow of the sky 'way at the back in the left corner. I do not believe I should want more than one picture of the type in my home, and yet there is that other one of Paul Dougherty's, 'Across the Bay,' which grips my heart. I will think about that and decide later. "The Rapids by W. Elmer Schofield, is another picture that holds me as the waters rush over the rocks. I wish the Atlanta art gallery would buy one of these wonderfully moving, vital pictures of Schofield's, Waugh's and Redfield's. Redfield's snow scenes are the only pictures of snow that I have seen that really make me want the brown stubble of the fields and the little farm houses tucked so snugly in among the bare trees are great. They certainly are wintry. "Let us sit down and look at that picture of Chauncey F. Ryder's 'Hillbrook Trail.' It is a large picture, so we sit down on the other side of the hall. Can you not actually feel the rare mountain atmosphere? And see how far off that pale green mountain is. It gives me such a sense of freshness, distance and space, and would never exhaust or tire me to look at. Yes, I want to buy that. "That one of Breckenridge's, 'The Grotto,' is another I would like the Atlanta art gallery to own. What a magnificent piece of coloring—so daring, so vivid. Not splashes of color, but masses. Look at that great mass of coral the yellow on the rock, and the reds, and the greens, and the pool way down in the bottom—they are they not fine? "And how would you like 'Two Lights,' by George Luks? It is night on the ocean, and the waves roll up a dark mysterious blue. In the distance, scarcely discernible at first, rise the mountains of earth heights, one behind the other, and two very faint lights shine forth from two dimly apparent lighthouses. "I like that 'Autumn,' by Frederick C. Frieseke is too modern for you? The nude woman lying under the trees in the summer sun with the mountains of earth heights, one behind the other, and two very faint lights shine forth from two dimly apparent lighthouses. When Hearts Command

BY LIZABETH YORK MILLER

As Hugo looked, the wall and tower swarmed with tiny figures like points of green light that danced and played under the strong gleam of the moon. Hector and Jean, no doubt, would say they were only ivy leaves shivering in the light breeze. That was because they could not see as well as he could. Hugo knew that the little green men were out in full force. Some of them leaned down and began to beckon to him. Perhaps they recognized him for a friend. He took out his handkerchief and flattered it like a flag of truce. Let them know that he really was a friend. Tito whined and he spoke to the little dog sternly, but under his breath.

"Now, you be quiet. Don't you start making trouble, or I'll throw you over the cliff and you'll wake up in heaven."

Suddenly Tito had no wish as yet to become acquainted with his future home. He stopped whining and thrust out a moist, affectionate tongue, kissing his master's hand.

"That's all right," whispered Hugo, somewhat mollified. "You just do as you're told, and there'll be no bad blood between us. Understand?"

They advanced forward step by step, feeling their way up the treacherous, briar entangled path. Once Hugo's foot loosened a large stone and it rolled down, making a great disturbance, but after one heart-quaking moment he satisfied himself that no one had heard. A sudden cry from one of the mules also startled him. It was just below him somewhere. He heard Carlo's sleepy voice grumbling harshly, and he expected Tito to bark, but nothing happened.

"I'm coming," Hugo panted as he set his foot on the broken masonry and began to draw himself up. It was like a ladder for steepness, but not for safety. Tito's figure and size were against him. He was too small and corpulent to follow his master any farther, and presently a dull, sad sense of resentment took possession of him. This was a mean trick, if you like, leading him on to think they were going to do something heady and adventurous together, and then abandoning him at the foot of an impossible wall.

"Come on, Tito," gasped Hugo, looking down from the height he had achieved. "You could manage it, old fellow, if only you'd try."

But Tito couldn't manage it, not in the least. He put his forepaws against the wall and began to scratch and cry.

"All right. Stay where you are," said Hugo. "Little coward!"

Jean stirred and then drew herself up on one elbow, staring about blankly. It was dark in the cave, but outside the air was filled with ghostly white light. The fire had died down completely, and there was nothing to see by as she felt her way toward the entrance. She all but stumbled over Gaunt, who slept soundly. There it was again—Tito barking and howling in the same way he had awakened her the night Hugo pitched over the balcony.

"Hector!" she said, bending down and shaking him. "Where's Hugo?"

Gaunt got up, still heavy with slumber, and they crouched close hand in hand until they could stand upright in the open.

"O, look!" Jean cried in a terrified voice.

Gaunt followed the direction she pointed.

There was Hugo, in the white moonlight, dancing madly on the high wall of the tower.

Out of consideration for the woman, Gaunt stifled a natural exclamation that rose to his lips. The sight of that madman careening on the ruined wall was enough to inspire highly colored invective.

"What are we going to do?" Jean cried, wringing her hands in helpless anguish.

"I'll have to go up and fetch him," muttered Gaunt, grimly.

Jean clutched his sleeve.

Again Carlo exclaimed. "But you would be killed, signor!"

"Tito, come here," Jean commanded. "The little dog's clamor was most disconcerting and deafened their attempt to claim Hugo's attention. But Tito was not to be silenced so easily. He was high up above their heads, on the bank of rubbish and stones at the base of the tower wall. Carlo crawled up to get him. Until that barking ceased it seemed impossible to make Hugo hear."

Carlo threw a stone and a few choice words at Tito. There was a yelp and a whine, and the little dog came slithering down, groveling on his belly away from Carlo to seek shelter behind Jean's skirts. She slapped, then patted him. "Now, you be quiet." She called again: "Hugo, please come down. You'll fall. It's dangerous up there. Please come down, dear."

This time Hugo heard her, or at least he gave her appeal some consideration. He stopped his curious capering and peered down.

"You come up," he shouted. "It's wonderful up here. I'm having a fine time."

"Come down at once!" bellowed Gaunt.

There was a moment of tense silence. Then Hugo replied: "Shan't. You can't make me, either. I shall do as I please."

"What are we to do?" Jean cried. "I'm captain of the castle now!"

Hugo cried gleefully. "I'm holding it with the little green men. Look out for yourself."

The advice was needed. One of the stones caught Gaunt on the forehead and produced a bad cut from which the blood streamed down into his eyes. (Continued Tomorrow.)

Girls Leave Thursday For Laurel Falls Camp

The Atlanta girls who will be members of the Laurel Falls camp this season are: Misses Mary Goddard, Suzella Burnett, Miriam Davis, Ada Claire Forshey, Harriett Runyan, Ruth Miller, Catherine Norcross, Ruth Norris, Elsie Prater, Barbara Wilkins, Maxine Moody, Jane Alger, Elizabeth Carroll, Pearl Coggins, Julia Sanders, Jane Zuber, Martha Bowen, Jeanette Bailey, Virginia Starke, Mary Eleanor Kemp, Louisa Shivers, Gladys Neal, Margaret Mahoney, Ruth Jolly, Virginia Thomas, Suzanne Springer, Elizabeth Fall, Virginia Brittain, May Padgett, Mary Armstrong, Margarite Holnett, Frances and Catherine Craighood, Charlotte Burnett, Flora May Tumbin and Elena and Carolyn Craighead. The Atlanta counselors are Miss Beatrice Hamlett, Miss Mildred Davis, and Mrs. E. R. Craighead.

Laurel Falls camp for girls will open the fourth season, Thursday, June 28, with Rev. C. W. Smith as director. The terminal station will be a scene of noisy confusion and merry greetings when the hundred happy campers from all parts of the south, meet to leave for Clayton, Ga., on a special train at 8:25 in the morning.

Laurel Falls camp is situated in the Blue Ridge mountains of north Georgia, at an elevation of 2,300 feet. Being a completely equipped camp, its junior and senior departments offer every sport dear to the hearts of fun loving girls.

In response to a demand from college and professional women, the Laurel Falls club has been established under the personal direction of Frank A. Smith. It is located at the foot of Screamer mountain overlooking Chechero lake, about half a mile from the girls camp, and offers the same advantages.

Most symphony orchestra and artist concerts are given at 4:30 in the afternoon at Washington, D. C.

Miss Mary Brown Feted Bride-Elect.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Brown, whose marriage to Thomas Talmadge, lively will take place Thursday, was the honor guest at a bridge-tee given by Miss Laura Jenkins Monday afternoon at her home on Lee street.

Pink and white gladioli and lavender sweet peas were attractively arranged in the reception room.

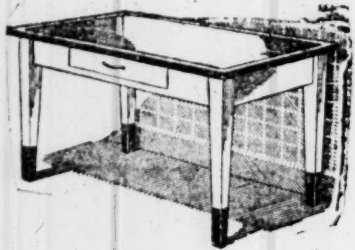

The tally cards were hand painted brides. Tiny green crepe baskets, filled with mints and kewpie dolls were presented to the guests.

The honor guest was presented a lace bandeau. Top score prize was a pair of lingerie clasps and consolation was a pair of bridge decks.

The guests were: Miss Brown, Mrs. W. L. Markert, Miss Marion Jack, Mrs. J. J. Rushin, Mrs. H. A. Bennett, Mrs. W. C. Carmichael, Miss Nellie Sheffield, Miss Vardeman, Miss Nonie Walker, Miss Effie Holcombe, Miss Willard Pherrill and Miss Mary Lou Barge.

"Prices realized on Swift & Company sales of carcass beef in Atlanta, Ga., for week ending Saturday, June 23, 1923, on shipments sold out, ranged from 9.00 cents to 18.00 cents per pound and averaged 12.92 cents per pound."—(adv.)

ANSWERED LETTERS

C. C. C. Violet, Reader.—The formula for the eyelash tonic will be mailed you on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

H. M. T. Betty B.—Your oily skin shows that your system is clogged and the skin is trying to relieve the condition. Drink more water and live on a more simple diet for a time.

Mary G.—You cannot prevent your brows from growing and it is evident that you are only making them thicker by constant shaving. Brush them so they will grow in a line, then they will not appear to be so heavy.

Brown Eyes, Curious, Worried, Valeria, Dolly, Mrs. T. R. B.—There is treatment, such as you mention, for destroying superfluous hair roots, but it has not been used long enough to state whether or not it is best for women to have it done that way. Until proven that this treatment does not injure the tissue, it is best for women to continue with the electric needle treatment, even though it is more tedious. If this is not possible, extract the coarser hairs by use of blunt end tweezers and bleach the finer hair with peroxide.

T. M. G. M. K. O. John, Anxious, E. C. C. S. L. A. Phyllis B.—A healing lotion for cases of pimples following a tendency to blackheads is made by mixing the following: Precipitate of sulphur, one drachm; tincture of camphor, one drachm; glycerine, one drachm, and rose water, four ounces. After cleansing the skin, apply this lotion to the pimples by saturating small bits of cotton, allowing them to remain on the pimples over night if possible.

Miss N. K.—I shall be glad to mail you the hair tonic formula on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. It cannot be printed at this time.

D. L. G.—Consult the doctor about this fullness of the abdomen and tired feeling. The trouble may be due to a run-down system, but you will do better to get at the cause before trying to treat it yourself. Use a flesh brush on the roughened skin of the upper arms.

Anxious.—For warts, try rubbing a little olive oil or plain salt into them every night. This treatment will often rid you of small warts. If the warts are larger, tie a piece of clean white silk around their bases, as they will often dry up this way and drop off. Never do anything with a wart on the face, as you may leave a scar. Go to a dermatologist.

Rebecca.—Bobbing your hair has not destroyed its tendency to curl. You will find this out as it begins to grow again to any length. You can help by dampening the hair and brushing it around your fingers, training it into curls.

(Tomorrow—Manicure Helps.)

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

Her Friend's Husband

BY INEZ KLUMPH

Gloria Chase comes home from boarding school for the wedding of her cousin, Virginia Schuyler, to a man whom Gloria does not know. Meeting him for the first time as the wedding procession advances toward the altar, she realizes that the groom.

Morton Phelps, is the man with whom she has been in love since their meeting a year ago, but whose name she has not known.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Bride's Bouquet.
Morton Phelps talked on and on, but to Gloria his words were meaningless. A storm raged within her. Instinct and training bade her flee but desire urged her to stay and listen to his persuasive voice.

As he said, there could be no harm in a friendship between them, she told herself in one breath; marriage no longer closed the door on people; they were free to enjoy the society of other men and women than their own husbands and wives. And yet—could love be set aside, ignored, like a sleeping volcano, and friendship forced into its place? She knew that it could not.

Young and inexperienced as she was, she knew too well that a friendship with a married man whose wife was abroad would be dangerous flame at which to warm her hands. No matter how little Virginia cared for him, or how little he cared for her, it would not do. His marriage vows stand between him and her, Gloria told herself.

"You almost persuaded me," she told him at last, frankly. "But I can't think as you do—not quite. I never could be satisfied with being just your friend. I want more than that or nothing at all. Oh, please don't begin again—I can't stand it! Please let's start over again as we ought, and remember that you can't be anything to me but my best friend's husband."

"Aren't you being rather hard on both of us?" he asked. "And also, aren't you being very old-fashioned? And very, very young? Of course, you've been shut up in school all your life, and don't know much about how

It fell straight into Gloria's arms. Civilized people really live. No doubt your teachers told you that to be

What Women Wear

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Gloves for the Sleeveless May Be Gauntlets or a Shorter Glove Topped by a Bracelet.

Sleevelessness has never taken so strong a hold as a feature of fashion with Americans as with French women. Perhaps our arms have something to do with it.

Admiring foreigners say nice things to us about our figures, our coloring, our hair and the way we arrange it. Our hands, our ankles, our feet—but did you ever hear them pay compliments to our arms?

Perhaps they do—but it isn't usual. Because American women simply haven't such shapely arms as most Europeans. It may be over-indulgence in athletics, it may be that our general nervousness keeps us from developing gracefully rounded arms.

At any rate American women don't usually have beautiful arms, and they know it. And there is no very good reason in showing ugly arms when you don't have to, even when sleeveless-ness is part of the prevailing fashion.

But if you are one of the exceptions—then go to it. Wear your sleeveless bodies and wear them with sleeveless jackets, for the fashion may pass and not return for many seasons.

Long periods have lapsed in times gone when perfectly bare arms did not appear even in the evening. During the Directoire period sleevelessness was as much admired and as usual as it is today, but it was rare before that. The most daring beauty at Versailles would have lacked courage to appear showing anything of her arm above the elbow.

With the sleeveless frock the French woman delights in wearing bracelets, sometimes two or three below the elbow and one above. Very seldom does she wear long gloves; and at last the American woman is wearing short gloves with her sleeveless frock without feeling a species of embarrassment.

The gauntlet is still frequently worn by the sleeveless; but there is a new trick of wearing a very short glove that ends where the hand joins the wrist. Often the end of this glove is covered with a bracelet—and this, of course, is by way of contrast to the gauntlet.

An extraordinary little sleeveless jacket of plaited beige crepe is shown in the sketch—worn over a beige good friends with a married man was to court destruction and everlasting punishment. Well, that's a false idea—sensible persons have exploded that theory. So don't be foolish; be willing to learn."

"Perhaps I'm foolish, as you say, and old-fashioned, too," Gloria answered slowly. "But though of course we'll be friends, because you're Virginia's husband, we won't be intimate friends."

And turning from him quickly, she went up the path to the brilliantly lighted house.

As she stepped through one of the French windows into the ballroom the guests were surging toward the hall, and one of the bridesmaids was calling:

"Come on, everybody—Virginia's going to throw the bouquet!" Come girls—the one who catches it will be the first to marry, you know!"

Seeing Gloria, she called, "Come, Gloria—hurry—come along." And Gloria, running over to her, caught Gloria's hand and drew her out into the hall.

Virginia stood half way up the wide staircase, radiantly beautiful in her trailing gown of heavy white satin. She had lived up to traditions of the Schuyler brides—and if she was somewhat colder and more remote than they usually were, she was none the less gracious.

She smiled down on her guests now, as she stood there with her great bouquet of freesias and white rose buds. She had decided to carry a prayer book—had even started toward the stairs with one before the ceremony, but this bouquet had come from the groom at the last moment, and she had substituted it with a little shrug of impatience; the prayer book looked so much better, and flowers faded when she carried them.

The long white ribbons trailed back over her arms now, as she stood for a moment longer, fully aware of her own beauty. Then she threw the bouquet, and its fragrance trailed through the air like a phantom comet as it described a wide arc, and fell into Gloria's outstretched arms.

INVENTIVE GENIUS MAKES CALOMEL DELIGHTFUL

Most Valuable of Drugs,
Now Purified and Refined
From Its Nausea and Danger—"Calotabs" the Name.

The medicinal virtues of calomel are in no way connected with its nauseating and dangerous qualities, as is proven by the fact that the perfected calomel, called Calotabs, is free from objectionable effects yet retains all of the liver-cleansing and systempurifying qualities of the old-style calomel. For biliousness, constipation and indigestion, and wherever calomel was essential, the new de-nauseated calomel tablet is a practically perfect remedy.

To inspire public confidence in their discovery the manufacturers have authorized druggists everywhere to refund the price if the customer is not "perfectly delighted" with Calotabs.
Sold only in trade-marked packages.
Prices ten cents and thirty-five cents.
One tablet at bedtime, with a swallow of water, that's all! No taste, no nausea, no griping, no salts. You wake up in the morning with a clean liver, feeling fine, and a hearty appetite. Eat what you please—no danger.—(adv.)

To Reduce Dangerous Varicose Veins

Strong, Powerful Yet Safe Surgeons Prescription Called Moone's Emerald Oil Has Astounded Physicians.

People who have swollen veins or hunches should not wait until they reach the bursting point, which means much suffering and loss of time, but should at once secure from any reliable druggist a two-ounce original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength).

By using this powerful, yet harmless germicide treatment improvement is noticed in a few days and by its regular use swollen veins will return to their normal size and sufferers will cease to worry. Moone's Emerald Oil treatment is used by physicians and in hospitals and is guaranteed to accomplish results or money returned.

It reduces all kinds of enlarged glands, colic, varicose veins and is used exclusively in many large factories as an unfailing first aid to the injured antiseptic. Jacobs' Pharmacy Company can supply you.—(adv.)

RADIO DEPARTMENT

AFTERNOON BILL WELL RECEIVED

"Listeners in" to station WGM's regular 3 to 4 o'clock program yesterday were given an hour of musical pleasure. The program, which was headed by Mrs. Charles Maddux, mezzo soprano, who is popular with radio fans over the country. In addition to Mrs. Maddux, Station WGM presented the following artists: Miss Elizabeth Russell, pianist and lyric soprano; Miss Lillian McDonald, pianist and lyric soprano; Clark W. Booth, baritone; T. A. Robertson, tenor; and Jimmy Finley, pianist. Mrs. Maddux gave her numbers, "Love Sends a Little Girl of Roses" and "The Magic of Your Eyes." She never sang better than this afternoon, but the number of calls for requests it was evident that the local fans appreciated her numbers.

Miss McDonald, who is well known to fans of this station, gave in her usual charming manner the following numbers: "As Long As I Have You," "The Sweetest of Songs," "The Little Gray Home in the West." His numbers were well received, as were Miss McDonald's.

Mr. Robertson gave his numbers, "The Sinking of the Titanic," "The Red-Headed Boy," and "Swinging Down the Lane." He sang the first time, "Don't We Carry On," he being the artist to introduce this number to the south.

Besides playing piano accompaniments for Mrs. Maddux, Miss Elizabeth Russell gave piano solos, "The Sweetest of Songs" and "The Little Gray Home in the West." Jimmy Finley, pianist extraordinaire, entertained the listeners with "Don't We Carry On," "The Red-Headed Boy," and "Swinging Down the Lane." He sang the first time, "Don't We Carry On," he being the artist to introduce this number to the south.

Station WGM Monday night presented to the great host of radio fans a most interesting program. During the hour's broadcast, the following artists passed before the microphone: Miss Annie Johnson, lyric soprano and pianist; Mrs. Mary Louise Wright, pianist; Mrs. George Wright, pianist; Miss Leona Harvey, pianist; Mrs. James G. Ison, dramatic soprano; and Miss Minnie Merle Carter, pianist.

Mrs. Ison is well known to the fans of this station, having appeared on numerous programs. She gave her vocal numbers, "Till I Wake," "The Land of Sky Blue Water," "If Flowers Could Speak," and "An Irish Love Song." Mrs. Ison has a dramatic soprano voice and each of her numbers was given in her usual charming manner. Her piano accompaniments were played by Miss Minnie Merle Carter who gave piano solos, "The Sweetest of Songs" and "The Little Gray Home in the West."

WGM To Broadcast Details of First Game of Doubleheaders

Yesterday's baseball game between Atlanta and New Orleans having been rained out, a doubleheader will be played this afternoon between these two teams and the details of the first game will be broadcast by Station WGM during the progress of the 1 to 2:30 program and again from 3 to 4 o'clock, thus giving practically the entire details of one game and part of the second.

Station WGM will broadcast the details of the first game of each doubleheader played during road trips made by the Crackers. When only a single game is played it will be impossible, owing to time limit, for WGM to broadcast the games, for they are called in four cities included in the southern league at 4 o'clock, in two at 3:30 o'clock and in one at 4:40 o'clock.

Upon the return of the home team to Atlanta, however, Station WGM will resume the broadcasting of the baseball details from Ponce de Leon park in Atlanta.

WGM Listeners Entertained By Footwarmers' Orchestra

Listeners to the 6 to 7 o'clock broadcast from station WGM last night were entertained for one full hour by one of Atlanta's prominent orchestras. The Footwarmers, who more than lived up to their name, The telephone at WGM's studio was kept ringing practically incessantly by calls from listeners who desired special numbers given by this celebrated radio orchestra. It was impossible to grant all requests, due to lack of time, but the orchestra, who are all ardent WGM fans, were very cooperative in this regard.

Included among the numbers given by the Footwarmers were, "When We Have No Bananas," "The Last Number," "The Footwarmers' Suite," giving a number of selections especially for the boys at the hospital, who are all ardent WGM fans.

Bear Traders Hammer Stock Market Monday

Other industrial yields in sympathy and when bear traders sensed the absence of support in these issues they increased their offerings, being encouraged somewhat by the marking up of the call money rate to six per cent.

Railroads were forced down to 121 and then rallied to 121 7/8, where it was off 3 3/8 on the day. United States Steel got down as low as 91 1/8 and then rallied to 91 3/4.

Additional selling in the rubber group, Kelly-Springfield dropping 2 3/4 and United States Rubber 2 1/2. Losses in the steel group also were recorded by American Woolen, American Smelting, and American Lumber.

Rails also lost ground despite the fact that the first May earnings report showed a net profit of $2,100,000. The general expectation is that the market will advance again as soon as the first of July.

Call money opened at 5, advanced to 5 1/2 and thence to 6, where it closed. The time money and commercial paper markets were dull with change in rate.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet with only nominal changes in rates. Sterling was steady at $2.48, the dollar at $1.61 1/2. French francs around 6.15 and German marks at 20.08 3/4 cents.

accepted as meaning that the government report will not show any improvement in the situation.

Elevated Train Wreck to Cause Searching Probe

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

New York, June 25.—Eight persons were killed and 45 injured today when two wooden cars plunged from a Brooklyn elevated structure into the borough's busiest traffic intersection. The two-car train, well filled with an early afternoon crowd of women, children and a few men, jumped the rails, tipped through rotted guard beams, tumbled over the edge of the structure, while hundreds of passersby stood spellbound in terror, and fell on its side to the pavement, a mass of splintered debris.

Carrying with it a mesh of electric trolley wires, the train hurtled to the pavement amid spurts of blue flame and crackling fire. As screams of the panicked passengers, many of them transfixed by jagged sections of broken wood, rose above the crash, flames shot from underneath the cars and drove back pedestrians who ran to the scene.

Bursts Into Tears.
The driver of a delivery truck, the radiator of which had been caught under the falling train rose, while he, trembling in his seat, burst into tears and staggered away. Two women, shaking as if with palsy, their faces bleeding from cuts climbed out of the wreck and walked away him.

Within a few minutes a dozen pieces of fire apparatus and police patrols had broken through a cordon of several hundred bystanders. A score of ambulances arrived as the firemen fought to choke off the flames.

Policemen, ambulance internes and employees of the railway, wielding axes feverishly, extricated one after another of the victims. Two hours were required to clear the wreckage of the bodies of the living and dead.

Edward Parrell, motorman of the train, who escaped without a scratch, was arrested, charged with homicide.

While hundreds of employees with 50 saws and axes removed the debris which was scattered for 50 square yards on the pavement, Mayor Hylan, District Attorney Dodd, Gerhart Smith, chairman of the board of directors of the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit company, which operated the train, and the police, started inquiries into the cause of the accident.

Faulty Construction.

The mayor and district attorney, after inspecting 25 yards of ties which had been ripped to splinters, announced their opinion that the loss of life had been caused by faulty construction.

"I am convinced," said the mayor, "that the accident was caused by a defective truck leaving the tracks and crashing through a rotten guard rail which, if good, should have prevented the fall to the pavement. The present guard rails are 20 years old. The cars are from 35 to 40 years old."

All investigating officials agreed that the accident had had its inception at a switch 50 feet beyond which the train had plunged to the street. The mayor, who had worked as an employee on the elevated railroad when it was built many years ago, asserted that the second car had been derailed on the switch, had dragged along on the ties and had pulled the first with it through the rotten guard rail. Although Parrell, the motorman, asserted that he had seen the switch turn to green, giving him the right-of-way, the switch was turned to red after the accident. The mayor openly charged that it has been tampered with after the crash.

Four of the dead were women. The first identified dead were Alexander Lowsky and Mrs. Louise Wright, both of Brooklyn.

Firemen tossed aside their helmets and rubber garments and plunged into the wreckage, tearing at the timbers with their hands, when axes and crowbars could not be used without endangering the injured.

Will Demand Probe.

New York, June 25.—Mayor Hylan, after a two-hour personal investigation told he believed the elevated line wreck was caused by a defective truck leaving the tracks and crashing through a weak guard rail. The fact that the cars were 35 to 40 years old and the guard rail 20, without renewal, was also to blame, he said.

"I shall try to reach Governor Smith and ask him to call a legislative meeting to remove the public service commission and the officials of the road because of this tragedy," the mayor added.

Squeeze All Water From Utility Stock

Urges Floyd Solon

Rome, Ga., June 25.—(Special.)—To squeeze the water out of public utilities stock is the object of a bill which Representative-elect J. P. Jones of Floyd, plans to introduce in the legislature at the session which opens on Wednesday. Mr. Jones is secretary of the Municipal League of Georgia.

Under the provisions of his bill, all public service corporations doing business in Georgia, with the exception of railroads, will be required to file itemized statements of their assets with the clerk of the superior court in each county in which they do business, as well as with the state public service commission.

Mr. Jones will also introduce a bill giving superior court judges a right to review decisions of the public service commission, and to reduce rates where they are thought by the court to be excessive.

CAVE SPRING SCHOOL TEACHERS ELECTED

Rome, Ga., June 25.—(Special.)—Teachers have been elected for the Cave Spring consolidated school. O. A. Strange, formerly principal of the Cave Spring high school, has been elected to head the new institution. The other teachers, 17 in number, come from all over the southeast, but a majority of them are from Georgia.

Teachers in the preparatory grades are required to have high school and normal school diplomas. Teachers in the high school department are all graduates of Class A colleges and have at least three years teaching experience.

Teachers of agriculture and home economics, to be employed under the Smith-Hughes bill, will be chosen later.

THUNDERSHOWERS AND COOL BREEZE PROMISED TODAY

Thunder showers with continuous cooling breezes is the menu offered by the local weather bureau for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. It was revealed by C. F. von Hermy, in charge of the Atlanta office, Monday.

Approximately one and a half inches of rain fell in Atlanta and vicinity Monday afternoon, this condition being general in the central portion of the state, and extending along the Gulf of Mexico.

Atlanta is safe from intensive heat waves for another week, Mr. von Hermy stated; indications pointing to delightfully cool days and nights.

Cave Spring to Hear Many Noted Speakers At School Exercises

Rome, Ga., June 25.—(Special.)—With Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State Agricultural college; Dr. D. J. Blocker, president of Shorter college; Dr. J. M. Sammons, of the First Baptist church; and Mrs. Alex. Harris, of the Home Woman's club, scheduled to make addresses, Cave Springs is preparing for a celebration on July 5, unmarked in that section of the country. Preparations are being made for more than 5,000 people who are expected to attend the celebration marking the completion of the Consolidated school building.

The Cave Spring school will be the first high school in northwest Georgia to have farm and home demonstration units taught under the Smith-Hughes act. As a consequence, not only patrons of the school, but Floyd citizens generally, are interested. Dr. Soule's address at Cave Spring will deal with the work which is being done elsewhere by schools working under the Smith-Hughes act and will attract widespread attention.

Members of the Rome and Cedar town Chambers of Commerce, of the Rome and Cedar town Rotary clubs, of both cities, of the boards of education of both places and of the local Kiwanis clubs are among those to whom invitations to attend the celebration have already been sent out.

Residents of the district which is to be served by the school will act as hosts to the visitors and plans are going forward, reports say, for the biggest "basket dinner" ever spread in Floyd county.

Millan will discover in the land of the midnight sun on the hundreds of thousands of square miles of territory never trodden by white men, only the future will tell. Whether he will discover the mines of radium of which the poets have sung or whether he and his crew will meet the fate of several other expeditions and perish in the frozen wastes during the long Arctic nights and cutting blizzards—that also is in the lap of the gods.

But as long as Captain MacMillan and his radio expert, Donald Mix, can keep in touch with civilization, they will flash their discoveries and observations southward. They are convinced that they will conquer the aurora borealis and will be able to transmit messages through its luminous tongues.

Radio to Boost Morale.

No man is more aware of the dangers and hardships that await him and his crew than is Captain MacMillan. He has the experience of 14 years in the Arctic. He also knows that one of the greatest necessities is to keep the morale of his men at the highest point and for that reason hopes for a great deal from the radio. News from the world down below will filter through to them and grand open and jazz music will respond for the first time in the world's history over the frozen wastes of the polar regions, during the weeks of enforced inactivity where the world is in a shroud of shades.

Captain MacMillan will tell what effect the baffling sound of music without instruments will have on the Eskimo tribes they are certain to encounter.

Large Tracts for Sub-Division

The territory one block east of Boulevard and one block south of Ponce de Leon Avenue has heretofore been inaccessible on account of lack of good streets. This region is now about ready to open up and will soon be ripe for subdivision into building lots. The best street approach to this section will be by means of Randolph St. leading off of Ponce de Leon Avenue.

We have in this locality 2 large tracts which we can sell separately or combined to make a continuous parcel suitable for subdivision. An investment of $15,000 will buy the land; further investment will include cost of street improvements when laid, making first class building lots that will sell readily at a good profit. THE LAND MUST BE BOUGHT NOW. Call at our office for further particulars and plat.

Deliver Urgent Messages.

Some of the messages Captain MacMillan is going to send will bear the prefix "urgent." An urgent message may come direct to an amateur or it may come by broadcast. Regardless of what way it comes, members of the American Radio Relay association are to notify the nearest newspaper affiliated with the North American Newspaper Alliance immediately by telephone or by wire. The newspaper will advise where and how to deliver the message.

The need for immediate action becomes apparent when it is remembered that it may be a case of life or death with the men who have ventured forth into the unknown.

Captain MacMillan's address has been listed in the radio directory as WNP, "wireless north pole." Full technical instructions have been sent out to the 30,000 members of the Relay league in the country by the league's headquarters, which are located in Hartford, Conn.
